A Great Love Serial by an Expert on Affairs of the Heart in These Modern Days

CHAPTER 10

WHEN Georgie opened the door for her face was unusually flushed. Ann wondered whether she had had more than one little drop out of Ernest Brooks' big silver flask.

Her heart sank at the thought but she was relieved to see that Georgie was perfectly composed. Probably the drink she had taken out of defiance to Anna's warning look was the only one she had had.

Protectively Georgie's face had taken on an almost sullen expression. She began to pull her things off, scattering them everywhere, after her fashion.

"Didn't think you'd still be up," she said aggressively. "Weren't waiting for me were you?"

"Of course I was. You know that, Georgie."

The younger sister gave a quick little laugh, full of harsh overtones. "Well, please don't bother me to-night. I know what you think, only I think differently, that's all."

Ann put her arm around Georgie's shoulders, but as if fearing affection would weaken her, Georgie drew away abruptly.

"Do you like that man?" Ann asked suddenly.

"What man?"

"The man you were with tonight, Ernest Brooks."

"Oh you make me tired!" Georgie flung out crossly. "You want to make everybody exactly like you and if they're not, you go around shaking your head and sighing. You ought to have been a missionary!"

Serious as she felt at heart Ann could not help smiling at Georgie's angry petulance.

"Well, I can't help that, can I?" she asked mildly. "But you haven't answered my question."

"Well, how can I answer it? Of course I like him. But I like lots of people. That's the way I am."

"Listen, Georgie, call me anything you want, but don't go out with that man any more. Honestly, don't do it."

"Well, I'm going to go out with him as often as I want, so you're wasting your breath. I do like him. He's an artist—draws things for magazines and advertisements—and he's going to take me to his studio some day and he's a lot more fun than the kind of men you think I ought to like."

"Fun, yes, but you can't trust a man like that, Georgie, darling. Listen to me, please." You mustn't make any mistake. It would be so easy to. Oh Georgie, why can't you see that a boy like Bill Warren is worth ten of that jazz hound with his studio and his flask. Honestly,

NEW CAR COSTS FORD $100,000,000

NEPHEW OF ARCHITECT CRAM GONE

Joseph Cram, 16, nephew of Ralph Adams Cram, noted Boston architect, has been missing from his home at Hampton Falls, N. H., since September 9, it was learned today.

The youth, who is the son of Mr and Mrs. William E. Cram, left home ostensibly to go to Maine to assist in harvesting the potato crop. With the close of the potato season and the failure of any of the farm agencies to trace the boy, his family became apprehensive, and instituted a search which, up to date, has been unsuccessful.

Young Cram was to have entered his junior year this Fall at Tuck High School, Exeter, N. H., although his parents had urged him to change to the Phillips Academy. He was said to be a good student, ranking third in his class.

The missing youth is described as being five feet, eight inches tall, 135 pounds in weight, with light hair, blue eyes, a prominent nose and quiet disposition.

12 MILLION IN BIRD'S ESTATE

Charles Sumner Bird, paper manufacturer of Walpole, left an estate totaling $12,300,000 it was revealed today when his will was allowed in Norfolk Probate Court at Dedham.

The $12,000,000 is in personal property and the $300,000 is real estate.

Three executors, George D. Dutton and Philip R. Allen of Walpole and Howland Twombly of Boston filed bonds of $18,000,000 today—or total bonds of $54,000,000.

TWO GUILTY IN RAID ON BOSTON ELKS' CLUB

Judge Creed in Municipal Court today disposed of the cases which resulted from a raid a week ago at the Elks' Club. Harry Carey, one of the two arrested, was found guilty of a liquor violation. John Murphy was found guilty of having in his possession a lottery. Both cases were placed on file.

The raid at the hotel was planned and executed by members of the Watch and Ward Society.

IN POST-WAR ROMANCE

Among passengers on the liner Republic arriving in Boston today were Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Reed, who were married recently in France. Reed, a State highway engineer of Cohoes, N. Y., saw service in France during the war and met Miss Claire Goupil, a volunteer nurse, while on furlough.

AUTO MAKER HOPES TO LIVE TO BE A HUNDRED

Henry Ford, after the hardest year in his life, is a man unembittered. His confidence is unshaken.

The change from the old to the new model of his car has cost him $100,000,000—but he faces the future with almost youthful faith. He expects to live to be 100 years old. Construction of airplanes that will carry fifty to 100 persons is first on his list of "unfinished business."

These facts, with intimate glances into the ever interesting personality of the motion picture magnate, are given by his friend of fifteen years, Allan L. Benson, in Hearst's International Cosmopolitan Magazine for December.

The Ford who believes in reincarnation, who sees the time when we will "fly to other planets," who sleeps six hours and wishes it could be seven, who thinks Napoleon was "an old fool" because he kept at the war game "for just one battle too long"—this is the man Benson found on a recent visit to Detroit and about whom he writes.

Still Same Ford

Visiting Ford after a year's absence Benson wondered if the events of the past year had hardened him, softened him, bewildered him, or made him, in any respect, grow in, he used to be. He found him, at 65, outlooking age, and as for his mental outlook:

"Nothing that has happened to Ford within the last year seems to have embittered him, hardened him or shaken his confidence in himself. He has had some jolts that he could not help but feel, and I thought I sensed a little letting down in exuberance and buoyancy, though it may only have been his mood for the moment.

"Anyone engaged in such tremendous operations as Ford was at the time almost certainly would be sobered somewhat."

Expects to Reach 100

Ford believes it will be his own fault if he doesn't live to be a hundred. He told his friend:

"I usually go to bed around 3

like good habits, form while they're young.....

Straight strong legs . . . trim neat ankles . . firm, rightly formed arches,—these things must come in youth. These things are determined by the shoes your child wears today.

Far from a "sideline" as in so many shoe stores, Children's Footwear is a very important part of the Coward business. Fitting feet for several past generations has taught us many things about fitting the feet of the budding generation.

That experience is at the disposal of parents—simply for the price of a pair of shoes no higher than you would ordinarily pay. And how Coward Shoes wear!

FIND BODY OF MAN WHOSE DOG 'SAID' IT WAS

Pownal, Me., Nov. 10 (A. P.)—The body of George E. Greeley, 62, whose wife was warned last night by her pet dog that he had entered the water, was found today in Royal river. Searchers found it resting against a dam not far from the point on shore to which she was attracted by the dog's persistent barking. Mrs. Greeley said her husband had been despondent.

FORD GAVE UP 100 MILLION FOR NEW CAR

better for me if I could sleep seven hours."

The writer found Ford "getting a big kick" out of his new model car. He has literally "put himself into and even under it, and nobody ever will know that car as he knows it." Ford, says the writer, always belittles his own achievements—declares them to be "very simple." He said solemnly enough:

"The first thing one has to do when one brings out a new car is to get ready. One must get money in the bank. As the world is now run, that is necessary. We did it."

The writer "had the nerve" to ask Ford how much money he had. Ford is nettled when such a question is raised, but he replied:

"I don't like to talk about money unless you consider money merely as a belt that moves industry."

Doesn't Know Wealth

The writer pressed him to know whether "the belt" was three feet wide or four feet wide, and Ford replied:

"Well, it is wide enough. As a matter of fact, I don't know what our bank balance is, I haven't heard for three months."

Ford did not talk of the cost of changing to the new model, but from his intimate knowledge of making over old machines, the bill for one hundred and fifty days of plant idleness, and the withdrawal of agents during that period, Benson estimated it cost Ford $100,000,000 to bring out the new car.

Calls Napoleon Fool

He asked Ford what he had learned about manufacturing in the last twenty-five years and recalled a statement of Napoleon that he "never learned anything from his sixty battles." Ford mused a moment, then said:

"Napoleon was an old fool. He kept at the war game just one battle too long and they got him.

"I have always learned as I went along, and I am learning yet. All one has to do to learn is to work."

Ford believes the most needed development in aviation is a better engine. After his new model car, it is his greatest interest. Mr. Benson writes:

"Ford would like to build a big plane, driven by perhaps ten or twelve huge motors, that would carry fifty to one hundred persons. Such a plane is always 'unfinished business' in his mind and in the mind of his engineers. Their ideas are taking form gradually, and some day we shall hear more of this plane."

The manufacturer stopped a moment in his discussion of aviation and then began:

"You know, I am a believer in reincarnation. I believe we all have been here many times before and been through, many times, the experiences that we are going through now. Perhaps we have flown many times before. The time may come when we shall learn how to fly to other planets."

MOTOR TRAFFIC TUNNEL READY FOR NEW YORK

The new Holland Vehicle Tunnels from New York to New Jersey will be opened November 12, from 5 to 7 p. m., for inspection. The opening of this new tunnel will greatly facilitate the movement of motor traffic between the States of New York and New Jersey.

No bicycles, push carts, drawn wagons, pedestrians, double-deck busses, metal tired vehicles, explosives, loose hay or straw or loads of poisonous gasses, inflammable or corrosive liquids or overloaded vehicles will be permitted to pass through the tunnel. Smoking in the tunnel is forbidden, and the speed limit is 30 miles per hour.

ORIGINATED 3RD CABIN TOURIST

Tourist third cabin travel has developed to such impressive proportions as to be a feature of the transatlantic passenger business, and so many different interests have claimed the credit of originating and developing the idea, that the present is an opportune time to establish certain historical data in regard to the opening of this epochal chapter in modern tourist traffic to Europe.

We are advised that after careful research, the following facts as to the origin of the tourist third cabin have been developed:

The specific idea was originated by L. S. Tobin, passenger manager at Montreal for the International Mercantile Marine Company.

It was given form and a name—the original term was "College Tours"—by Mrs. Earl B. Hubbell, wife of Dr. Earl B. Hubbell, a veteran tour organizer of Chicago. The first party in the new class of travel was organized by Dr. Hubbell, and sailed from Montreal for Liverpool on the White Star liner Regina, on June 21, 1924. It consisted of 53 people, under the personal escort of Dr. Hubbell.

Since the organization of the first tourist third cabin party thousands of people of moderate means have availed themselves of this form of accommodations and the opportunity to visit foreign lands at minimum expense.

CONFIDENCE

Thirty-five Years of Square Dealing With the Public

Not one customer can point their finger at us and say that we ever deceived them in the way of honest values for honest dollars.

WE CAN'T PERFORM MIRACLES

It is impossible for us to sell you a $200. coat for $85. or a $300. coat for $125. or a $260. coat for $60., therefore you will never see such offerings advertised by this concern

STORAGE

During our storage season we find hundreds of customers who have been sadly deceived in the purchase of a coat, and in many instances we find that after one season this class of coat is not worth the cost of repairing same.

PROTECTION

When one thinks of one fur only (rabbit or hare) having forty different names, many sounding like that of well-known furs, how is the public going to know just what is being offered?

HUDSON SEAL

When a Hudson Seal, which is dyed muskrat, is offered for sale, how is the public going to know whether the coat is made from good, honest, selected skins, or from flats, throw-outs, Canadians, Burnt skins, etc., etc., etc. They all look alike to the buyer. Even the shrewdest can easily be deceived. Therefore, we know much better than you that protection is very much needed when no little amount of hard earned money is being spent for the purchase of a fur coat.

We offer you full protection in quality and price, and our interest in your coat never ceases during its life.

PROTECTION YOU DON'T PAY FOR

We examine, compare, test, and insist on a certain quality skin being used on every coat we offer for your selection. For this reason Dolan and Son never hesitate in offering $500. rewards, and our money back guarantee to each customer who might favor us with a share of their patronage.

TERMS

Our terms are as easy as any offered in Boston or Massachusetts and our merchandise and business dealings can always be relied upon.

Don't Drug— Just Flush Out Poisons With Mild, Harmless Salts

"It gets 7 in 10 Past 40"

Most folks nearing middle life foolishly seem to think that they must resort to stimulating drugs when the kidneys feel like lumps of lead, the back hurts or they suffer from sick headache, dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach and sometimes rheumatism. In reality, all they need to relieve their troubles and feel "pepped up," is usually a thorough flushing out of the body poisons in a natural way.

There is one mild, easy, ideal method which has been found highly effective by thousands of people for years. You simply take a tablespoonful of JAD SALTS in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. By helping to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys and neutralize acids in the system, the source of irritation is often entirely done away with and bladder disorders relieved as well. JAD SALTS is inexpensive, absolutely harmless, makes a delightful lithia water drink and may be obtained in four ounce size from any druggist.

CALDWELL'S DISQUALIFICATION STARTS UPROAR

BRUCE CALDWELL, though he will not play for Yale against the Princeton Tigers Saturday, will continue to figure prominently in the news and sport dispatches. Yale men are what you might call indignant over the disqualification, and before the uproar dies, Yale will probably be forced to adopt some new eligibility rules.

Bruce Caldwell

One correspondent blames the whole thing on a disgruntled Brown grad—there must be an old grad in it somewhere—and brings in the sinister finger of suspicion, the gambling element, and so on.

Following is from a very interesting communication:

"The loss of this star player, one of the greatest in Yale history, comes at a critical moment, for the Blue attack has been effectively built around Caldwell. From early in the season, when his exploits began to figure in the headlines, no secret was made of the fact that he had spent a year at Brown. It seemed significant, therefore, that the disclosure of his supposed ineligibility should have been made, on the sudden, a few days before the Princeton game, which may decide the Eastern championship.

"A Yale graduate, residing in Boston, who is in touch with the athletic situation at New Haven, has submitted extracts from confidential letters. A brown graduate, his letter written on October 9, following Yale's defeat by Georgia and a week before their successful encounter with Brown's "iron men, wrote as follows:

"'If Tad Jones values his reputation as a coach, he will center the attack in Bruce Caldwell. Of course you know that Caldwell played freshmen football here, some years ago? I guess you put one over on us there; we could use him this season. His eligibility, though, is above question. Bruce always hoped to wear the Blue; he is a fine fellow, clean and modest, and should suit the Eli scheme of offense far better than he would have faced at Brown. Never fear, we expect to make it two straight over Old Eli next Saturday. After all, Caldwell can be stopped—as Georgia proved—so we shan't need to protest his eligibility! There will be a mint of money wagered.'"

YALE KNEW CALDWELL PLAYED AT BROWN

"THE above remarks were sent to an individual who is close to the Yale football strategy, and a clear-cut reply was received. This is an excerpt:

"'Don't worry over Caldwell. He is known to have played at Brown, but not in varsity intercollegiate competition. We expect no complaints about his status; he has already faced Harvard once, and no honorable question can be made of his right to represent Yale. The dual agreements with Harvard and Princeton are not based upon suspicion but on a reasonable interpretation of fair sportsmanship. Caldwell is not, in any sense, a "tramp" athlete. No rule could justly debar him from competition.'"

CLAIMS DISGRUNTLED GRAD TIPPED IT OFF

"NOW, with the sport world all stirred up, the Brown alumnus writes as follows:

"'I cannot wonder if Yale men, and all believers in fair play, are disgusted at the accusations against Caldwell. A finer, more earnest fellow I have never known. I must apologize for my college, and especially for one of its sour-stomached alumni. I have it on good authority that the papers here were tipped off, concerning Caldwell's freshman games, by a graduate who had lost heavily on Brown versus Yale. Bruce accounted for most of Yale's points in that game, you remember. The same cowardly back-biter has, I understand, sunk a small fortune in a pool that is being raised at Princeton. Yale will be shattered in morale, he believes, and withheld his disclosures until the psychological moment. If Harvard and Princeton value a decent reputation they will insist that Caldwell be permitted to play. There are three few squads, including their own, probably, that would not be wrecked by applying absurd technicalities. God forgive such meddling, low fellows. Why the devil doesn't Yale scrap an agreement which has caused more injustice and abuse than the old conditions at their worst?'

"So Bruce Caldwell, it seems, has been made the scape-goat of a graduate's grudge!"

THE foregoing is somewhat violent in spots, but the collegians, when they get started on football, take off the brakes and let go with great fervency. Mister Caldwell's case is unfortunate, but based entirely on misunderstanding. Eligibility rules are understood, perhaps, by the drafters thereof. The players and coaches haven't time in the Fall to study them out. Looks as if each college should have a football censorship board.

Athletics are supposed to build up the moral and physical character of the students. It is all wrong when a fine young chap like Caldwell can undergo such terrible humiliation and punishment because of a rule that he never had heard about.

UNLEASHED TIGERS

All-America honors are awaiting Ed Wittmer, crack Princeton halfback who faces Yale in the classic of season Saturday. Wittmer is only a sophomore yet he rates with the great backs of the year He can run, punt, pass and receive.

SMART, TRICKY END With everything is Capt Charley Moeser, Princeton wingman. Like Wittmer the Tiger leader is headed for All-America honors. Experts say Moeser is the brainiest end of the season. He and Lawler make an ideal pair of ends but they will face a couple of tough birds in Fishwick and Scott of Yale.

GOOD END MEN ARE in demand in both football and a minstrel show. Coach Bill Roper has dug up a sweet end in Newman Lawler who will oppose Yale Saturday.

Caldwell Case Stuns Little Town of Ashton

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY.

Ashton, R. I., Nov. 10.—A thousand heavy hearts beat here today in silent sympathy for a small town hero whom Fate has cast aside at the foot of the throne of Fame.

A thousand bitter hearts poured out their scorn on those who have snatched the laurel from the brow of Ashton's best-loved son.

The village of Ashton, home of Bruce Caldwell, brilliant Yale star, who has been disbarred from football on the eve of the games he dreamed of playing, the whole of Cumberland township, is full of grief because "Skit," as Caldwell is affectionately known, has been declared ineligible to play for the Blue in the games with Princeton and Harvard.

To the dweller in the big city, the fact that Bruce Caldwell, a Yale gridiron player, has been declared ineligible because he played freshman football at Brown before matriculating at Yale, is just a news story. A story soon to be forgotten.

But let the casual reader visit Ashton. Here, this announcement strikes every heart. Here is a tragedy. For here, Caldwell is a hero. Here is Caldwell loved. Here is the home of the man who has flashed across the football horizon and shed his light on an obscure Rhode Island village. And here, on the eve of Yale's greatest battles, the hero is dethroned.

It was gathering dusk when we started along the road from Pawtucket to Ashton, a village in the township of Cumberland about four miles away. A narrow ribbon of concrete road cuts through the village. On the right are modest homes and the inevitable village stores. On the left, rising on the bank of the Blackstone River, countless red brick houses stretch out like tents in a military camp. These are the company-owned houses, wherein dwell the workers in the cotton mills.

In one of these houses, distinguishable only by number, lives the Caldwell family. The house is only a minute's walk from the Ashton branch of the Lonsdale Mills. It took us all afternoon to find it.

The houses look neat and comfortable. Stretched out on lines back of the houses which are about 200 feet apart hangs the week's washing. The laughter and efforts of children at play, and the rushing waters of the Blackstone river alone disturb the evening quiet.

When we reach the Caldwell home there is no response to repeated knocking. Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell are still at work in the mill. So we take our chartered taxi, and make a tour of the village.

NO PLACE FOR REPORTER.

We first stop at a lunch cart stuck on the side of the road.

We inquire if the waiter knows Bruce Caldwell. Strange. He does not. The people of Ashton are cold and aloof.

"We are a reporter!" came the query after an order for a cup of coffee.

"Yes."

"Well, take my tip, and keep out of here. The newspapers queered Caldwell.

We tried to convince the hostile waiter that the newspaper incidentally made Cald well.

"Well," continued the waiter, "after what's been said about Bruce, I wouldn't care to be the reporter to ask him for a story."

Outside we met an old man sucking a dirty colored clay pipe.

"Bruce Caldwell is in town. Have you seen him?" we opened.

"Yes. He's been around. It's too bad about Bruce. He was here and brought up here. And they played a dirty trick on him. They wouldn't if he had a lot of money."

The old man was talkative. Probably invigorated by the brisk wind.

"Yes," he continued, "the whole town is burned up over Bruce. Why he's the town idol. Comes home here after games. Pals 'round with the boys. A regular fellow."

But he didn't know where Bruce was. And we were looking for Bruce.

We circled around the village, and started back toward the mill. We had been told a half dozen wrong addresses. No one seemed to want to tell a suspicious looking stranger where Caldwell lives.

REAL TOWN HERO.

Along the road we saw a group of children leaving a Catholic Church. Following them was a young saintly priest. We got out and asked him about Caldwell.

"The Caldwells are a fine family, one of our best. Everyone speaks highly of them. It's too bad about Bruce. Bruce is a fine chap, and I don't think he shares the general feeling about reporters."

Along the street we were stared at. Village people are like that. They spot a stranger immediately. We stopped at a general store. Here a somewhat robust proprietor, good-natured, but sharing the general resentment against newspapers, who shoulder the blame for having Caldwell disbarred, advised us in a most confidential manner that Ashton was not, at the present time, the most pleasant spot for a reporter to be found in.

Terribly frightened we bit another cigarette. And went next door to the keeper of a filling station. He was a man, a bit obdurate, with a fine thatch of white hair sweeping back from his brow.

"These newspapers—" and then

Princeton President Urges Yale to Use Caldwell

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 10.—President Hibben of Princeton wired President Angell of Yale as follows: "I am distressed to learn of the situation which has arisen concerning Bruce Caldwell. I hope that your athletic committee will yield to the suggestion of the Princeton faculty committee to allow Bruce Caldwell to play in the game on Saturday. We will rejoice as much over such a decision as all of you at New Haven."

Secret Amherst Work

Amherst, Nov. 10. Another secret practice is slated for the Amherst College football players today.

Stadium a week from Saturday.

"It is my sincere wish and the wish of everybody connected with athletics at Harvard that Caldwell should face Harvard on Nov. 19. This is no theatrical gesture on Harvard's part. The Athletics Association, the committee on regulation of athletics, Coach Herseen, the assistant coaches, the players and the faculty are anxious to see Caldwell reinstated. If the solving by Harvard of the rule which bars Caldwell from further playing will result in his reinstatement, Harvard will gladly waive it," said Bingham.

SENTIMENT FOR CALDWELL.

There is no doubt about public sentiment being in favor of the disbarred Mr. Caldwell. He could be restored to good standing and the cheering would be universal. But it is feared the athletic committee will decide that a rule is a rule and that the Eli backfield ace must remain out of the Princeton and Harvard games because he played a few minutes for the Brown University freshman eleven back in 1923.

In case the committee rules otherwise, however, Bruce will be fit to play. Answering an urgent request from Coach Tad Jones, the player returned here from his home in Ashton, R. I., shortly after midnight and appeared with the squad in practice at the Bowl this afternoon.

Still ineligible, he acted in a coaching capacity, showing his understudies Johnny Garvey and Bill Hammersley, what they will be supposed to do in the event he is forced to remain on the sidelines against the Tigers Saturday, but he did plenty of running around so as to be in shape should he be allowed to play.

NETTLETON TO DECIDE.

Both Harvard and Princeton are sincere in their desire that Caldwell be allowed to play, and if the Yale athletic committee reverses its ruling barring the star, it will be on account of the plea of the two rivals.

Everybody in Princeton from President Hibben down has also let Yale know that Caldwell's reinstatement would be hailed with joy in Tigertown.

Director Cates said that since neither Caldwell nor Yale knowingly violated the rule, it might be possible to accede to the wishes of Harvard and Princeton.

The decision rests mainly, however, with Professor Nettleton, chairman of the athletic committee, who will not return to New Haven until just before the meeting tonight.

And it is felt Professor Nettleton will favor, on any attempt to reinstate Caldwell, despite the sentiment in favor of the player.

Yale Daily News, undergraduate paper, today expressed the view, editorially, that Caldwell should not be allowed to play.

Schoolboys Play for Flood Victims

Everett will play the High School of Commerce on the former's grounds Saturday in a benefit game for the Vermont flood sufferers. Neither school has a game scheduled for this week and when Everett decided to play a charity game, Coach "Doc" Fleming offered to let his eleven furnish the opposition.

With an opportunity to see the great Everett team in action and at the same time help a most deserving cause, it is expected that the schoolboy fans will pack the Everett field to capacity, Saturday afternoon.

TUFTS ELEVEN EXPECTS WIN

Tufts, by virtue of its leading position among the small college elevens of the country will face Bowdoin next Saturday at the Oval heavily favored to conquer the Maine team.

By all comparisons of this season's scores the odds rest with the Jumbos—and yet—on three different occasions since 1918 a presumably inferior Bowdoin aggregation has upset the dope and plinned a defeat on the Jumbo.

Bowdoin, although not possessing an impressive record for its season's efforts, nevertheless has one of the strongest elevens in the State of Maine.

Coach Sampson considers the Bowdoin assignment the toughest on his schedule, in spite of the favorable outlook. He is confident that he is going to need the best work of every one of his regulars to keep the Jumbo slate clean.

CHAPMAN SURE HE WILL WIN

"Red" Chapman, long denied the right to wear the crown of the feather weight class, will make his last bid for it next Monday night at the Arena when he will meet Tony Canzoneri, young sensation from New Orleans, in the 10-round main bout.

Chapman has more courage than the ordinary fighter. If not, he could not have stood the disappointments which have crowded around him. He should have won featherweight king years ago, when he defeated Johnny Dundee. He should have been champion a few years later when Louis Kid Kaplan, then regarded as the title holder, twice ran out of ring with him.

Three Lafayette Stars Suspended

Easton, Pa., Nov. 10.—Failure of Harold Cochran, Lafayette football captain, who yesterday was suspended by Coach McCracken for one week as the result of an infraction of training rules, to report for practice this afternoon, resulted in his suspension from the squad for the remainder of the season. At the same time the coach also announced the suspension of Arthur Pursell, substitute fullback, until following the Susquehanna game. Mike Wilson yesterday was given a week's suspension.

Scotty Atkinson has been appointed acting captain for the game with Susquehanna here saturday.

Today's practice was the first of the week and was concluded with a hard scrimmage. The revamped varsity team ran through the second eleven for four touchdowns. Volbert, Chimenti and Sheriff reeled off some gains against them.

Indict White Sox Star On Seduction Charge

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 10 (A.P.)—Chalmer William Cissell, former Des Moiner Western League shortstop recently purchased by the Chicago White Sox for more than $100,000, is under indictment here on charges of seduction.

A twenty-year-old telephone operator of Valley Junction, a suburb, who filed the charges on which Cissell was indicted a week ago, declared she and Cissell met last New Year's eve and kept company until the ball player went to Spring training camp with the Pacific Coast League club, two months later.

On the strength of his promise to marry her, she said, she purchased a trousseau and made preparations to join him in Portland at his request. He wrote a letter in August promising to come to Des Moines, the girl declared, but failed to appear.

Dundee and His Manager Suspended

Los Angeles, Nov. 10 (A.P.)—All prospects of attempting another fight here in the near future between Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, and Ace Hudkins of Nebraska, were snuffed out today when Seth W. P. Strelinger, local member of the State Athletic Commission, suspended for an indefinite period the champion and his manager, Max Waxman.

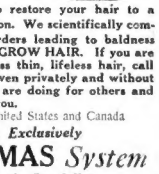

Wife of Billy Coutu Dies

Montreal, Nov. 10 (A.P.)—Mrs. Billy Coutu, wife of the well known hockey player, formerly captain of Montreal Canadiens, and latterly with Boston of the National Hockey League, but now a member of the New Haven team of the Canadian American League, died today.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Coutu was prominent in Montreal swimming circles. She leaves three sons and an edaughter.

Coutu was to have left yesterday t orepart to his team, but remained here with his dying wife.

50,000 DUE AT BROWN GAME

Great Interest in Stadium Clash Despite Poor Records of Teams

The poorest Brown and Harvard teams in years will play before a crowd of more than 50,000, one of the largest ever to attend a Crimson-Bruin clash, in the Stadium, Saturday afternoon.

Why more people will witness this contest than saw any other Harvard home game this year, except that with Dartmouth, is a mystery, but nevertheless a fact.

Harvard has lost three of its six games to date and Brown has dropped five in a row after winning two preliminary contests, yet the demand for tickets is almost as great as for the Harvard-Yale game.

It is Brown's last game against Harvard for at least two years and probably for many years. That may be the reason for the great interest in the clash.

That there will be plenty of action is a virtual certainty. Brown, angered at being dropped by Harvard, is out to inflict a licking that the Crimson will never forget.

Harvard, after two straight defeats at the hands of the Bruins, is determined to gain revenge. The Crimson's chances are better than ever of beating the Providence eleven because for the first time, due to the non-scouting agreement with Yale, the Horween charges will be able to open up. In Brown games of the past, Harvard could show nothing because of the Yale game the week following.

Coach Horween, in his desire to gain a victory over Brown, has made five important changes in his lineup for the game.

Palmer-White Pass Wins for St. Marks

In the closing minute of play a forward pass from Palmer to White gave St. Marks a victory over its greatest rival, Groton, 10 to 7, at Southboro.

Donald placed a drop-kick between the uprights in the first period for the only score of the half. Groton went ahead in the third period when Leonard ran eighteen yards for a touchdown after a series of line plays. Then, in the closing three minutes of the game, St. Marks snatched the lead again for the last time.

WANER BROTHERS SIGN 1928 PIRATES CONTRACT

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 10 (I.N.S.).—Paul and Lloyd Waner, outfielders, signed a 1928 contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates, it was announced today. Both got substantial increases in salary, but out of deference to President Barney Dreyfuss' policy of keeping his payroll secret they refused to divulge the amount. They are appearing in vaudeville here this week.

BRUINS TO FACE TOUGH FOES

The Bruins can expect to find stouter opposition in games with American group teams than was the case a year ago, particularly in games with Chicago and Detroit, which teams have been made over since the last campaign.

New York Rangers and Chicago Blackhawks offered the Bruins the best competition a year ago, and in a good many respects Rangers and Bruins were confronted with the same problem—a weak second line.

The shrewd Lester Patrick has gone out and gathered three strong players to support his great forward line of Frank Boucher and the Cooks, Bunny and Fred, noted brothers.

Alex Gray and Art Chapman come from Port Arthur, while Sparky Vail from Springfield, a strong minor league defense player a year ago, seems to have fitted in nicely with the Rangers.

Ching Johnson and Taffey Able will play the regular outer defense for the New York team this season, with Chabot in goal.

In that respect the Rangers start with the same advantage as the Bruins in that they are able to present the big six off 1927 intact. The Bruins have Galbraith, Oliver, Fredrickson, Shore, Hitchman and Winkler.

Detroit, which follows the Blackhawks to Boston and plays here the night of the Harvard-Yale football game has strengthened beyond question.

LEO LOMSKI IS HARD PUNCHER

The greatest puncher since Stanley Ketchell swept out of the West, makes his appearance in the Hub when Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen Assassin clashes with Homer Robertson, N. E. middleweight champion, for the Argonne Club at Mechanics Building, November 18.

Lomski's record sounds like a chapter from a movie scenario. It is specked so often with knockout victories that a skeptical promoter might investigate before tying him up for a match. But Lomski's record will bear the closest scrutiny and when this Western ring whirlwind hits the Hub it is expected that local fans will go wild about him.

Consider his most recent knockouts: Ted Moore, 1 round; Bert Colima, 2 rounds; K. O. Eddie Roberts, 5 rounds; Willie Walker, 2 rounds; Tony Fuente, 2 rounds; Cowboy Wills 1 round; Baby Joe Gans, 1 round, and Mickey Rockson, 1 round.

KAPLAN AND FELICE TOP NEAT CARD

In the main wrestling event at the Grand Opera House tonight, Abe Kaplan, Jewish champion will undertake to defeat Tony Felice, the Italian flash.

Felice on the other hand, is just as large as Kaplan and is a real wrestler. He hopes to beat Abe decisively tonight and then wants a match with his countryman, Jovanni Vargarini, or some other good man.

Vargarini has plenty of trouble on his hands as he is slated to meet Stan Stasiak in a special match. The big Italian is in for a tough evening as Stasiak wants to leave for his Western invasion with a victory to his credit.

George McLeod is here ready to prove that all the good advance notices that have been received about him are justified. He will hook up with Jack Albright and Ivan Ludlow in a handicap match.

Jack Odel and Red McGuire are down for a special match that should be full of action from start to finish. Odell is a likely looking youngster and his work tonight will be watched with interest.

It is the intention of the local promoter to pick some of the best looking talent tonight and match them for the following week with that winner to meet Panther Joe Malcewicz in a finish match at the Grand Opera House Thanksgiving evening.

Fittons Play Return Game With Peabody

A large crowd of East Boston rooters will accompany the Fitton football team when they play their return game at Peabody with the University A. C., Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Three weeks ago these teams met and the final result was no score.

Both of the teams are represented by leading college players. The Fittons present a far different lineup than appeared in the last contest. The unsatisfactory playing of some of the Noddle Islanders will result in some replacements that will materially benefit the team for their future contests. The Peabody team will also strengthen for this contest.

Fordham Drops De Lany, Star Back

Lany, triple threat fullback of the Fordham eleven, will be missing from the lineup when the team meets Providence Saturday. Because of too frequent cutting of classes, school authorities announced that he has withdrawn from the squad. He has been the outstanding back on the eleven this season.

we wished we had taken up plumbing.

"It's a shame the way the papers have pried into his business. They have no right to do that. I'd like to know the this and that who spilled that story and so on. Why did they have to wait until this time? Everybody knew Caldwell played for Brown."

Assembling a great deal of reportorial dignity, we parried the onslaught. We came to see Bruce Caldwell. We wanted his story. And intended to get it. The white-haired defender of Bruce relented after a while and told us to wait. Bruce had gone to Pawtucket to the movies with a few friends. He would be back by supper time.

The floor was littered with cigarett butts when a Ford roadster dashed by the store.

"There he goes"

And we hurried over the hill to meet Caldwell.

We arrived a few seconds too late. Bruce had entered his home.

We knocked. A little girl answered. Bruce has a sister attending high school in Cumberland.

"Is Bruce home?"

"No."

POVERTY STORY STINGS BRUCE.

"Are you quite sure? We want to see him for just a few moments."

The inner door opened. A tall form shoved through the darkness, opened the front door, and closed it carefully behind him.

Here was Bruce Caldwell, dressed in knickers and a light sweater. He was a bit uneasy to learn the identity of his interviewer. He kept his hand on the knob

He is a good looking chap, with reddish hair and grey eyes if we saw correctly in the light of our taxi headlights.

"I have nothing to say. It's all over. Talking about it is not going to do any good."

"Of course I feel badly. But why drag my family into it." Bruce was alluding to a story that appeared in an unnamed paper that had made him a Horatio Alger hero, the son of poor parents who slaved all day to send him through Yale.

"My father and mother work. That's true. There is nothing uncommon in that. I am in need of no financial assistance. Neither are my parents. Nor do we want any sympathy.

"No one who has written about me has taken the trouble to see me. It is rather humiliating to be pictured as one whose parents are in poverty. Not that poverty is any disgrace. But the attitude people take.

"Why, only today, after the story that appeared, I had a letter offering to pay the expenses of my father and mother to New Haven to the Princeton game."

We agreed. Much as the story of a poor boy, struggling for a place in the world, aided by devoted parents, finally reaching the pinnacle only to be set down by an unkind fate appealed to us, in Caldwell's case, it is not the truth. Maybe it's a good story spoiled, but it is a rank injustice to picture him other than he is.

VERY COMFORTABLE FAMILY.

Bruce Caldwell is perhaps as well off financially as hundreds of boys who now attend college. His parents are not the only ones who work. He dresses well, and owns a Ford. His family is comfortable and happy. He will not be reduced to dishwashing or waiting on table to complete his final year at Yale.

He has not been appointed an assistant coach at Yale. He does not contemplate playing professional football. He is sorry he can't play for Yale in the two biggest games of the year, but he is philosophical about it.

He wants none nor needs any financial help. Uncalled for sympathy he disdains. His college career won't close in a blaze of glory as he dreamed, but he will survive the cruel blow of fate.

There was a flood in Ashton. The lower floors of the Ashton Mills were covered with water. Many were put out of work temporarily. But the people of Ashton don't mind that so much.

Bruce Caldwell can't play any more for Yale. Ashton is sorrowful. Ashton is bitter. For Bruce is a regular fellow, who has never forgotten his home town friends. He will always be a hero.

It was a cold ride back to Boston. And it appears to us that someone "ain't done right" by Ashton's Bruce Caldwell.

Football Mutineers Are Back in Action

Allentown, Pa., Nov. 10.—Nick and Frank Borrell and Eddie Dickert, the three star backfield men on the Muhlenberg College football eleven, who attracted attention when they turned in their uniforms between the halves of the Muhlenberg-Ursinus football game last Saturday, are back in the fold.

After a conference with Coach Benfer, the players agreed they had made a mistake in the heat of the moment, while the coach was pointing out the flaws in the team's play during the first half of the game, and that they regretted their action. They signed a statement to this effect today.

In order to get a good idea of this back pressure of ball against club think of the club as being held stationary and of the ball suddenly coming in contact with it with a velocity equal to its velocity initally when you hit it for, say, 200 yards. The club in that event would be jarred clear out of your hands unless it was held with a fairly firm hold. This is the reason why the player is cautioned by me in these daily screeds to maintain his grip throughout the swing. For this reason the fingers should be found to be firmly closed against the shaft after the swing is completed and entirely over with. If that is done it will indicate no loosening of the grip because of the back pressure from the ball, and if the grip is loose at the finish you can be sure it first loosened at the time of impact.

McTigue Has Made $394,000 in Ring

Toronto, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—Michael McTigue, the Methuselah of the prize ring, won't miss the "racket" when age finally drives him from competition because he can always "get fights at home." The two-time light heavyweight champion, admitting close to 40 years in the age column, announced today that he would retire from active glove work within a year. Mike has been fighting 17 years.

"I think I need a rest, don't you?" asked the veteran, who was knocked out in a round by Mickey Walker in Chicago a week ago. "I began fighting in 1910."

Mike's fighting at home, he explained, was taken care of by his three small daughters, the oldest of whom is eight years. "They can give me a battle any time," the ancient one declared.

The fists of the durable Irishman, who won the light heavyweight title first from Battling Siki in Dublin one St. Patrick's Day and regained it again this Fall by decision of the New York State Athletic Commission, only to lose it again to Tommy Loughran, have earned him $394,000 in the ring, Mike said.

GOLF LEADS ALL OTHER GAMES IN PARTICIPANTS

Golf has a greater number of active participants than any other game in America, according to a handbook just issued by the Playground and Recreation Association of America, the Associated Press states. Quoting a park official in an Ohio city, a prediction is made that at the present rate of increase, from 10 to 15 millions will take up the game in the next 15 years.

TUNNEY PEEVED AT TEX

Rumor Rickard Managed Dempsey Has Champion All Upset

New York, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—Gene Tunney is "mightily peeved" at Tex Rickard and is certain to cause quite a rumpus when he gets back to town.

That and no more would Billy Gibson, manager of the heavyweight champion of the world, say today in the absence of his warrior, now spending a few days "roughing it" on Raquette Lake, Old Forge, N. Y.

The aroused mental state of the champion has been caused, Gibson explained, by tales reaching Tunney's ears that Rickard is the "under cover" manager of Jack Dempsey, whom Tunney whipped for the title at Philadelphia last year and trounced again in defending the crown at Chicago this Fall.

Jack Kearns in his suit for $333 333⅓ against the former champion, will allege that the promoter of the last two title battles has handled Dempsey's affairs for almost two years, he has announced. Other sources maintain that Leo P. Flynn, who managed Dempsey during the latter's comeback attempt, did so under the direction of Rickard.

"Gene will fight at least twice in 1928," Gibson said, "but not necessarily for Rickard both times. There has been no break between Tunney and the promoter, but I do know that the champion is mightily peeved at the stories going around concerning Rickard's connection with Dempsey. Jack's order for stock in Madison Square Garden hasn't helped matters any, either.

"Tunney is bound by no contract to fight once for Rickard in 1928. He feels, however, that one battle a year is not enough to ward away "ring rust" and is certain that the knock-down Dempsey scored in the seventh round at Chicago never would have happened if he had been fighting oftener.

"Of course, I have no idea where Tunney's second match next year will take place. We have offers, backed by reputable sporting men from both Chicago and Philadelphia. Gene may take one or both of them, but that will not be decided for some time to come."

AL LASSMAN QUITS HOSPITAL ON CRUTCHES

Al "TNT" Lassman, the giant New York University football tackle and heavyweight intercollegiate boxer, was released from the French General Hospital today.

He is expected to be a member of the New York University party which leaves tonight to engage Penn State at State College, Pa.

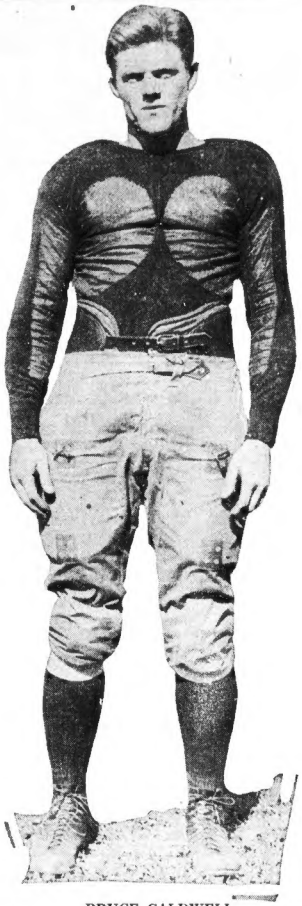

Lassman has been in the hospital since suffering a broken leg in the game with Colgate nearly two weeks ago. When he quits the hospital his leg will be in a plaster cast and he will employ crutches.

MINNEAPOLIS ICE TEAM WINS PRACTICE GAME

Minneapolis, Nov. 10 (A.P.).—The puck again is whizzing across the ice in the professional hockey leagues.

The Minneapolis American Association team and the Chicago Black hawks of the National League trieu out their skates last night, with Minneapolis winning, 1-0.

BROKEN HEARTED

BRUCE CALDWELL

The disbarment of Yale's brightest star on the eve of the Princeton game has cast a pall of gloom over New Haven. Bruce himself is pretty much broken up over the disclosures, which rob him of fulfilling his boyhood dreams of playing against Princeton and Harvard.

Petty on Stage

Brooklyn will see Jess Petty, the Robins' star left-hander, in a new role Monday night, when he opens a vaudeville act at Keith's Prospect Theatre.

Grid Notes

Bruce Caldwell's row has been a hard one from the day he entered Yale, but this final blow knocked the props from under the great athlete. Caldwell was at the height of form this season and was looking forward to delivering with a vengeance against Princeton and Harvard.

Capt. Bob McPhail, Myles Lane, Jack McAvoy, Leo Klikelley, Al Frisonie, George Cole, "Red" Langdell and Johnnie Billing will play their final game for Dartmouth against Cornell. The class of 1927 furnished some fine gridiron material and the boys will be missed next Fall.

Captain McPhail and Myles Lane made the varsity their sophomore year, a wonderful achievement, as that team was the 1925 champions. McPhail and Lane have ranked with the best in the country for three years and Dartmouth will have a terrific task on its hands replacing them.

If they were obliged to go back four years to get something on Bruce Caldwell, it might be necessary to dig through the football annals of the past decade to nail Marling of Yale. On the card Marling is listed as being but 19 years of age, but a glimpse at his hairless dome is evidence to the contrary.

Fred Ostergren is just about the last word in football up around Olean, N. Y. Since Ostergren's St. Bonaventure eleven tied Cornell there is nothing too good for the former Holy Cross star in upper New York State. St. Bonaventure will do well to retain Ostergren, for he has put that college on the football map this season.

Yale News Is Opposed to Caldwell Playing

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 10.—The Yale Daily News today editorially advised Yale not to use Bruce Caldwell any longer in football because he violated a clean eligibility rule. The News said:

"Admittedly in the wrong."

From the Princeton statement it is clear that Yale will have to decide the question of eligibility of athletes for herself. They confirm their belief in the letter of the transfer rule as it now reads but generously offer to accept in good spirit a departure from the agreement if "it seems to the Yale committee in any way possible and proper to make an exception" in this case.

Since we must judge ourselves, let us conscientiously consider the background and original spirit of the agreement.

When the rule was adopted in 1923 it was intended primarily to eliminate the "tramp athlete" from college sports. But even at that time the committee realized that rigid enforcement might work extreme hardship in some cases. Since then it has been strictly followed in every instance.

Since the ruling was originally made in full appreciation of the injustice that might result, since both colleges have enforced it consistently to the present, and since Princeton, even under the immediate circumstances, believes in its wisdom and effectiveness, there is but one honorable course for Yale to follow.

That is to uphold the letter and spirit of the agreement as it was actually executed and has since been practiced. If the rule is essentially unfair, let us throw it out next year, but it is in force now and we must take the consequences.

It is most unfortunate that things should have gone so far, for regardless of sentiment we cannot get around the fact that the original violation exists.

Because we were ignorant of it when we played teams from Rhode Island and Maine is no excuse for magnanimously disregarding a known error when we play a team from New Jersey a few weeks later.

Consider the hard feeling and harsh words if we used this questionable power Saturday and should win.

Time for Eligibility Protest Expired

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 10.—If either Harvard or Princeton had protested Bruce Caldwell's eligibility this week, the Yale athletic committee could have refused to consider the plea.

According to the Princeton-Harvard-Yale eligibility code under which Caldwell has been declared the date on which protests regarding eligibility could be received expired several weeks ago.

Under the letter of the agreement, a protest filed at this time has no legal weight or standing. For this reason many Yale alumni have hoped that Caldwell would be allowed to take part in the Harvard and Princeton games.

This clause was designed to prevent eligibility muddles from arising on the eve of a big game, but it has failed to do so, because the Caldwell case is still regarded as open two days before the Yale-Princeton game.

TIGERS OPEN UP SEASON ON SATURDAY

The Boston Tigers will make their season's debut against the Providence Reds Saturday night at the Arena against the most critical audience that has ever witnessed a professional hockey game in this city.

In addition to notable figures of the sport world, the two teams will be playing a Canadian-American League game before representatives of the Springfield, New Haven, Quebec and Philadelphia teams of the Can-Am loop and also scouts from the New York Rangers, New York Americans, Montreal Maroons, Canadiens and the Maple Leafs.

Baseball will be represented at Saturday's opening by Managers Bill Carrigan of the Red Sox, Jack Slattery of the Braves, Dan Howley of the St. Louis Browns, Fred Mitchell business manager of the Braves, Danny MacFayden of the Sox, Pie Traynor of the Pirates and Frank Hogan of the Braves.

Boston College, Brown University and St. John's College, Brooklyn will have their football squads at Saturday's games.

Why Can't They Run Down Here?

Williamstown, Mass., Nov. 10 (A.P.).—For the first time in years, Williams will not have a cross country team entered in the New England inter-collegiate meeting in Boston, next Monday because the team has expended its allotted funds. This was announced today by the athletic council.

Eli-Tiger Game Real Battle, Says Coach 'Cav'

MAJOR FRANK W. CAVANAUGH,
Head Football Coach at Fordham University,
Former Head Coach Boston College.

The Yale-Princeton game arrives this year with both of the classical rivals occupying top positions in the Eastern football world. Princeton boasts the only unblemished record in the East.

Several of the first-rate elevens, including Pittsburgh, Washington & Jefferson, and New York University have not been beaten, but Princeton alone, has been neither beaten nor tied.

Despite the Ohio State and Cornell games, the feeling still persists that the Tiger outfit has not been thoroughly tested as yet. Princeton's schedule of seven games has been productive of no battles worthy of the name, except for the two above-mentioned contests.

There may be a certain advantage to be gained by easy contests, but I have found that team approaches its fine game in better shape if it has gone through at least three or four good hard battles. However, the schedule makers down at Princetown may have thought Lehigh, Amherst, William & Mary, and Washington & Lee would be stronger than they were.

What'ever may have been the Tiger state of mind, their team is pointing for the Yale contest with every member in the best physical condition possible.

They are fortunate in this, for quite often in the effort of games a star will be badly injured.

Yale on the other hand has gone through one of the hardest schedules in the East.

Jones may feel assured that the strength of his team is not being over-estimated for it has proven itself in hard struggles. He knows what his men can and will do against strong opposition.

The contest at New Haven Saturday will be productive of enough of the various kinds of football to satisfy the most exacting fan.

For the lover of old time, straight football there will be the meeting between two of the best lines in the country.

Every inch gained by either team through line attack will be earned. Two great defensive backs in Miles and Dexter will be there to back up the forwards, on defense, and lead the interference, on the offense.

Yale will flash two backs in Hanmersley and Garvey, either of whom is capable of running the tackles. Princeton has a quartet of backs who can run with Wittmer doing most of the ball carrying.

Boiser's team will probably show a wider knowledge of the passing game than Yale, but there again when pressed in the Army game the Blue team uncorked some passes that brought the staid followers of New Haven football to their feet.

In Hoben and Baruch, Yale and Princeton have worthy successors to Lyle Richardson, and Don Lourie as field generals.

Hoben may not be able to throw a pass as well as Richardson but his judgment and choice of plays as proven by the Army and Dartmouth games is well nigh faultless.

Baruch against weaker opposition has turned in some very skillful jobs, and reports from Princeton have him labeled as the best passer on the Tiger squad.

Built for comfort, what I mean!

COMFORT and lots of it. I'm talking about Prince Albert, Gentlemen, the National Joy Smoke. Why, there's friendliness in the very aroma of P. A., as you open the tidy red tin. Some fragrance it is, too.

The first pull on a pipe packed with P. A. tells you the taste is equally friendly. Cool and long-burning. Sweet as grape-clusters, hanging on the vine. Mild as arctic sunshine, yet with plenty of good, rich tobacco-body to let you know you're smoking. So mild, in fact, that you can load-up and light-up from breakfast to bedtime.

Now, I'm not one to mix in on other people's affairs. But this pipe-thing is different, somehow. I can't resist tipping you off to what I consider the greatest pipe-tobacco in the world. Get some P. A. now and get some of this comfort I've been telling you about.

Quality and quantity both—TWO full ounces in every tin.

The Story of the Stars (Egypt and the Great Ptolemy) By Garrett P. Serviss

The builders of the Egyptian pyramids and temples of 4,000 years ago were devout astronomers. The Great Pyramid was a tomb and an observatory. The passages in the great pyramid pointed toward certain stars, as indicated above.

The interior passages and chambers of the pyramid were elaborately made. This one pointing to the pole star was primitive telescope of giant size. Th small white spot at the end of the passage was the window, opening toward the star.

The first scientific astronomer of Egypt was Claudius Ptolemy (second century A. D.), who was a geography and mathematician. His great book, the "Syntaxis," was the only textbook of astronomy for about 1,500 years.

Copyright, 1927, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

This drawing, from an old print, shows an astronomer of the Middle Ages in full regalia. In those days Ptolemy was regarded as an unquestioned authority, although his system was based on a huge error.

MINCING MACHINE

It is often found somewhere difficult to fix a mincing machine firmly to the kitchen table, and unless it is quite secure the work of mincing is made much more lengthy and troublesome. A very simple tip to remedy this is to have a pad of glass-papers, folded rough side out side, and fix it between the clamp and the table before screwing up. This will hold the mincer securely in position.

Do not use soda to clean aluminum. A little pumice powder on a damp rag is most effective.

The champagne of teas comes from the sunny hills of far-away Formosa.

A Dinner Party for Thanksgiving

By MARTHA LEE.

WHY not kill two birds with one stone this year—of course we don't mean turkeys—and make your Thanksgiving family dinner also a Thanksgiving dinner party?

It is not necessary, to add one of two courses to the usual home dinner of "turkey and fixins," some attractive decorations to the table—and lo, the dinner has become a dinner party. Here is a menu suggestion that is simple to prepare and yet has all the flavor of turkey day.

Sardine Canapé Celery Olives Mock Crab

Turkey with Sausage Dressing Cranberry Sauce Creamed Onions Sweet Potatoes With Pineapple Asparagus Tips Hollandaise Sauce Frozen Tomato Salad

Pumpkin Pie Cheese Nuts Figs Raisins Cider Coffee

Make the color scheme of your table yellow and green, since yellow is the color of this glorious season. A pumpkin centerpiece might be formed with green ferns. Dress up your candlesticks with yellow candles and decorate the bases with a large bow of yellow gauze.

Funny little place cards and favors may be easily made with fruits and vegetables. An apple may have a dusky face drawn on it with ink and a "mammy" bandana. An entire wire man may be made from canned firm cherries with a marshmallow head.

The following recipes will prove helpful for this menu:

Sardine Canapé—Spread circular pieces of toast with sardines rubbed to a paste with a small quantity of creamed butter and seasoned with Worcestershire and a few grains of cayenne. Place in the centre of each canapé a stuffed olive, made by removing stone and filling cavity with sardine mixture. Around each arrange a border of the finely chopped whites of hard boiled eggs.

Mock Crab is delicious especially when baked in individual ramekins. Melt four tablespoons butter, mix with one-half cup flour which has been seasoned with one teaspoon salt, three-fourths teaspoon dry mustard, one-fourth teaspoon paprika. Pour on gradually one and one-half cups scalded milk. Add contents of one can corn chopped, one egg slightly beaten, three teaspoons Worcestershire sauce. Pour into your individual ramekins, cover each with buttered cracker crumbs (this takes about one cup) and bake until crumbs are brown.

If you want to make your dinner easy buy your cranberry sauce in cans, also the tiny Vienna sausages for the turkey dressing and the dainty asparagus tips. Chill the cranberry sauce in the ice box, and don't open until ready to serve.

Sweet Potatoes with Pineapple—For a service of six people use eight medium sized sweet potatoes, two tablespoons butter, one-fourth cup pineapple syrup from the can, brown sugar to taste, three or four slices of pineapple, six or eight marshmallows. If you use the canned sweets simply mash with a wire potato masher (if you use the fresh ones they must be boiled). Add butter and pineapple juice and beat until light and smooth. Half fill baking dish with potato, cover with layer of wedged shaped pieces of pineapple, and marshmallows cut in halves. Fill dish with potato and lay slices of pineapple on top. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Place whole marshmallows in holes of pineapple slices. Bake in moderate oven until marshmallows brown and melt slightly.

Frozen Tomato Salad is very quickly and easily made. Open one quart can tomatoes, turn into dish and let stand one hour. Add three tablespoons sugar, season highly with salt and cayenne pepper, and rub through a sieve. Turn into any small tin boxes you have which are uniform in size, or a large tin box if you prefer, pack in salt and ice, using equal parts of each, and let stand from two to three hours. Remove from mold, serve on crisp lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing.

And here is an old reliable recipe for pumpkin pie:

Pumpkin Pie—One and one-half cups steamed and strained pumpkin, two-thirds cup brown sugar, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon salt, two eggs, one and one-half cups milk, one-half cup cream. Mix ingredients in order given and bake in one crust.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Exceeding the Speed Limit — Was easily achieved by the winged messenger named Mercury. Thus, it shouldn't be surprising that Mercury wings, of rhinestones, are so speedily becoming one of the most popular hat ornaments of the season. Used at the right side of a cap-like hat of velvet or felt, such a gracefully curved little glistening wing is adjusted low over the ear.

Proud as a Peacock is suggestive of the height of pride such as is displayed by the posture of the rhinestone peacock which serves as a hat ornament. The tail of this jeweled pin is actually formed of bits of peacock feathers.

DEALERS: Be sure that you have Wallace Toast in stock, plenty of it, so as not to disappoint your customers. All good jobbers can supply it.

Eat and Reduce!

Sufficient boxes have been delivered to be ready for all who call for this toast tomorrow. Telephone, leave an order, or drop in at the grocer's and take a box home.

Many report as high as a pound a day reduction. Hundreds have lost two and three pounds a week. This table will give you an idea of the weight you can attain if you let this scientifically balanced toast assist the process.

The fat that used to be a misfortune will soon be looked on as just a fault. What excuse for overweight when so simple a thing as eating toast that you enjoy will give you direct aid in correcting the condition?

Any dealer can get Wallace Toast—it's baked in a model bakery—and sent to every locality every day. Your dealer has it or will get it. If out of it the day you ask, he'll save you a box for tomorrow.

Remember, it's delicious toast—rich in vitamins. Look on the wrapper for signature—

A Fine Serial of Boston Life After Theatres Close for Night

CHAPTER 50.

As the three men entered Becky was standing half turned toward the door. She was talking to a tall lady of something more than middle age, who, as all three men knew, was a very great lady indeed. And in her manner, although she was merely Becky McCloskey, there was an extraordinary poise and charm.

Her arm, stretched rigid to hold her body back from the lacquered table, was striped with alternating bands of clear jade and square cut diamonds, but on her hands she wore no jewels of any sort. Her dress was scarcely more than a straight slip of faded rose-colored crepe, caught on one shoulder with a circlet of jade entwined by brilliants. Yet, though her skirt was as short as the skirt of a flame-colored dress she had worn long ago and though it flared abruptly above the same shapely knees, the flare and the brevity were the flare and brevity of fashion, no longer extreme, no longer startling and shocking to Estabrook. And for a moment he could not believe that this quiet, dignified woman was truly Becky McCloskey, hard, rough, tender Becky, whom he had loved and cast out.

So he looked at her face and saw that black crescents of hair still cut the whiteness of her cheeks, and that her blue eyes were still wistful and grave, her red lips chaste and enticing. And he remembered what Briquard had said, that great ladies loved the sadness of her eyes, and that the poorest clerk and the toughest taxi driver of the Halles applauded her gamin smile. He saw, saw very clearly, why all Paris loved La Janikoff. . . .

This much he saw in the moment before Becky saw him, and afterwards he saw only that she turned and came with both hands outstretched, the left to him, and the right to Boris, with the old smile on her lips and the old mist over her eyes, saying that she was so glad to see them, and that it had been very, very long since she had spoken to an old friend.

After that Estabrook felt, perhaps for the first time in his life, utterly ashamed. He felt ashamed and awkward, like a stripling at his first ball, and he wanted dreadfully to slip away and hide, to evade the irksome duty that brought him to this crossroad of memories. Boris approached and they talked for a bit, deciding coolly that they must not tell Becky yet of Scarlett's death, must not spoil her party. Then Boris went away, and Estabrook sat in a brocaded armchair which was rather too small, and felt that all the world saw his discomfiture, though in point of fact none was looking at him at all.

So he had ample time to think deeply on the water that had flowed under the bridge since last he and Becky McCloskey had been at a gathering together, and ample time to contemplate the emptiness of his life and the folly of his pride, and to count up the happiness which might have been his and which was now forever beyond his reach.

He must have been there, in the round chair which was too small, for a considerable time, since presently people began to take leave of their hostess and depart. He got up then, but a light hand on his sleeve detained him, and Becky said:

"If you aren't too tired, John, will you wait? I want terribly to talk to you alone."

"I came here to talk to you. There's something I have to tell you." Estabrook hated the formal, uncontrollable stiffness of his speech.

"Wait then," she said.

Subsequently it seemed that he waited an aeon, but at last everyone had gone.

'Lovelorn'; Ann Wonders If Bill Warren Is Really Her Ideal

dear I know what I'm talking about!"

Georgie's hands were clenched. She was trembling.

"Don't!" Ann begged. "Georgie, don't! People will hear you!"

"I don't care if they hear or not. I'm not going to be told to do this and that, and bossed around as if I were a child. You haven't got any right to tell me where to get off, have you? I earn my own living, don't I?"

"Georgie, Georgie!" Ann pleaded, but now that the torrent was loosed it was no use trying to stop it.

"I won't stop talking. I've wanted to say these things for a long time, and I'm going to say them all now. You've been trying to make me do things your way, and you don't realize I've got the right to live as I like. It isn't any business of yours. And besides you've got an awful nerve to criticize me, when I saw you out in the hall tonight with that smart-aleck. I suppose that was all right because it was you!"

Ann's face was very white. "I'm not going to explain—you wouldn't listen to me reasonably, Georgie," she said. "It isn't that I want to boss your life, but I do want you to be happy, and you're going to mess up things if you go around with a fast gang. Oh, darling, before it's too late, while he still loves you, why don't you marry Bill?"

"Marry Bill! Georgie sneered. Her anger semed to rise now to a point where she had lost all control. "Do you think I'd throw myself away on Bill Warren? Listen! The way you talks sounds to me as if you had a crush on him yourself. Go and get him! I'll make you a gift of him! You two would be wonderful together!"

There was a biting rancor in her voice, though her wild-looking eyes showed that she scarcely knew what she was saying.

But something seemed to stab Ann at that last outburst of bitterness. She felt faint, and all at once sobs rose up chokingly in her throat. She turned away quickly and went out into the hall and stood there for a long time in silence, trying to control herself.

She thought she could hear Georgie weeping softly inside the room now. A clock ticked in the lower hall. A bed creaked as some one turned restlessly. No doubt the sounds of their voices had carried, and the next morning half the house would know they had quarrelled.

Quarrelled! Really quarrelled. It was the first time it had ever happened. They had had disputes, little moments of meaningless anger, but never anything like this in its intensity, its determination, its desire to inflict hurt.

Ann had fought back the desire to sob her heart out, but a depression of spirit that was bitterer to bear because she had no means of relieving the ache of it weighed her down.

She stood there for a long time, almost as if in a trance, thinking and yet not thinking. When at last she opened the door, though the light was still on, Georgie lay, her head on the pillow, slumbering already.

She looked so young and innocent, so wilful, with the tear stains still on her cheeks. What a child she was! And in spite of her selfishness, her carelessness, even her cruelty, she could atone for these things with true kindness and great generosity. She would have deep remorse for what had happened this night. Knowing that, Ann could not help forgiving her.

And automatically, as from long habit, she stooped and began to pick up Georgie's scattered things and arrange them on a chair. Then she, too, undressed, turned off the light, and settled down in bed. But she could not win sleep quite so easily as Georgie.

She had certainly lost and lost badly. If anything her opposition had only decided Georgie more strongly in her own mind to go her own way without advice or hindrance.

Once more Ann's thoughts turned to Bill Warren. She could picture his good-natured face, with its wrinkled, frowning forehead, its serious honest eyes, its cheerfulness, its harmless, man's vanity.

Suddenly she began to smile and her smile was one of tenderness. Then abruptly she remembered that last insult Georgie had flung at her in the fullness of her rage. Ann and Bill Warren—what was it that made her heart leap at the thought, made her feel guilty and confused, happy and unhappy?

Was she really blind? Was she urging Bill's case so much only because in her heart of hearts he seemed to her ideal? But it couldn't be that—she was very clear about him. She felt she knew even his smallest faults. No, it was a matter of sober reasoning that had made her wish to see Georgie married to Bill Warren.

She fell asleep at last. In the morning, for once, Georgie was up before her, and out of the room before she could speak. Ann went off to work. That noon at lunch, as she came out of the gates, she found Bill Warren waiting to see her.

Tomorrow—Bill tries courting Georgie through Ann. What girl wants that?

Dr. Reed on Infectious Diseases

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.

IF your son or daughter is at a boarding school, you have a direct personal interest in boarding school conditions in their relation to "catching" diseases. There is always the question of crowded dormitories, crowded classrooms, poor ventilation, bedding, personal clothing, and even food, considered as so many media for the transmission of preventable diseases.

It must be said, however, that disease-prevention conditions there are generally better than in private homes and public schools.

It is important to remember that diphtheria, scarlet fever and chickenpox can certainly be transmitted by means of clothing, which ought always to be disinfected after use by one of these cases. Steam disinfection is the only safe protection for the first two.

Chickenpox, however, is so mild a disease, has so long an incubation period and spreads so much less readily than most other infections that A. L. Simey (Lancet) thinks it ought to be removed from the list of scheduled infections at boarding schools.

Undoubtedly prevention has certain unfavorable results. The effect of the present precautions is that many boys pass through private schools without having contracted, say, measles. In the public schools the disease is also kept out for four or more years on end until there is hardly any one in the school who is immune.

Then, when finally the infection creeps in, it flares out in a really bad epidemic, each round of which is more serious than the last. After a time the rounds cannot be distinguished, and for want of sufficient accommodation patients in early and later stages of the disease have to be nursed together. The wards get so full that they cannot be cleared, ventilated and cleaned and complications arise which turn the epidemic into a nightmare.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By Marceline d'Alroy

At EIGHT, stolen fruits may be
SWEET. And so they may be
At EIGHTEEN. But at
TWENTY-EIGHT, it is doubtful
ONE kiss in the dark may
Leave a PLEASANT taste,
But a fond heart given in a
WEAK moment, is likely to be
IMPRESSIONS. For
HE who stole it—
Must RUN.
And ANOTHER thing,
At twenty-eight MOST women
Like to LOVE in comfort and SECURITY. And no woman is Really HAPPY whose ears are
Listening to AUGHT else but
Her lover's PRAISES.
DESIRE may be snatched
Like an apple from a
TREE, and half-eaten
Or CAST aside.
But LOVE is borne on
Wings of SACRIFICE, which
Hold it aloft and safe
Until a PERMANENT resting
Place can be found.

The Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

MARRIAGE is such a heavy yoke, that many a man has to have an attractive stenographer to help him bear it.

Alas! It is so hard these days, to hear "love's old sweet song," above the roar of motor-cars, the jingle of money and the jangle of jazz!

It takes a lot of real brilliance to write an effective love-letter—and a lot of real brains to refrain from writing one.

If the reformers succeed in taking all the intensive kissing out of the motion pictures, the average married woman will forget everything she ever knew about love.

The average man goes to his grave wondering whether he captured the woman he married—or merely capitulated to her.

Fortunately, the only kind of kisses that can be offered as evidence in a law-suit are those that the defendant was foolish enough to put on paper.

When a man is truly in love, he can think of a hundred reasons why he should get away from the woman; but the only thing that really bothers him is the thought of how to GET her!

The costs of a divorce are not deductible from your income tax; yet to most society women, divorce is a real luxury; and to most actresses a few divorces are a part of the "overhead."

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU CAN'T FORCE LOVE.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a young man. We have been keeping company ten months.

Last Sunday he told me he can't marry me. I asked him why. He said the reason was the difference in our religions. I told him he had known that from the start, and that my parents do not object to our marriage. He said his parents do object. Since then I have not seen him and he has not answered my letter.

What can I do, please, in such a case? Can I sue him for breach of promise?

HEART-BROKEN SADIE.

YOU can't force any man to love or marry you, Sadie. I am sorry you are disappointed. But it is evident your friend does not care to become engaged to you.

You can hardly sue him for breach of promise when you and he were not formally engaged. Besides, love that can be consoled by dollars and cents is not very deep or sincere.

Go about with your other friends, my dear, and have pleasant times. Try, hereafter, not to take young men too seriously until they prove their love by a proposal of marriage.

In the next issue Mr. Whitehead will explain the salient points in the bidding and play of the above hand. Fill out your own chart and compare it with his method.

These hands must not be bid or played "Double Dummy," i. e., as though all four hands were exposed.

Salient Points of the Bidding

South's Club bid effectively shuts West out of his bid, leaving him nothing to do except possibly to double. West, however, passes, as a Diamond response by his partner would be embarrassing. North, although holding normal support for Clubs, bids his seven-card Diamond suit. Following East's Spade bid, South shows his secondary Heart suit, which, over West's assist of Spades, North denies by now showing his NORMAL support for Clubs. From this point on, the bidding proceeded until a five-Diamond bid is doubled by East and taken out by West because of the freak nature of his hand. West's take-out was in every way sound. The five-Diamond bid could have been defeated two tricks, and then only by perfect defense, whereas five-odd in Spades seemed probable from the bidding.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 1. The spread of the Dummy disclosed a peculiar situation. In all probability South holds but four Clubs, that is if North's assist was with three cards of the suit. South's secondary bid of Hearts, with the Queen in Declarer's hand and the Ace in Dummy, must have been with five cards, in which case North is void of Hearts. With this reading, Declarer sees that his only chance for game is to set the Club suit in Dummy, notwithstanding South's Club bid.

Trick 6. East fears to further shorten his trumps, particularly as a complete cross-ruff of the hand would not produce game. He therefore discards his King of Diamonds and permits South to win the trick.

Trick 7. Nothing that South can lead at this point will save game. Should he lead a Heart, North can make one of his trumps, after which he would be compelled to lead a Diamond or a trump, either equally abortive. If South should lead a Diamond, Declarer would make a Small Slam.

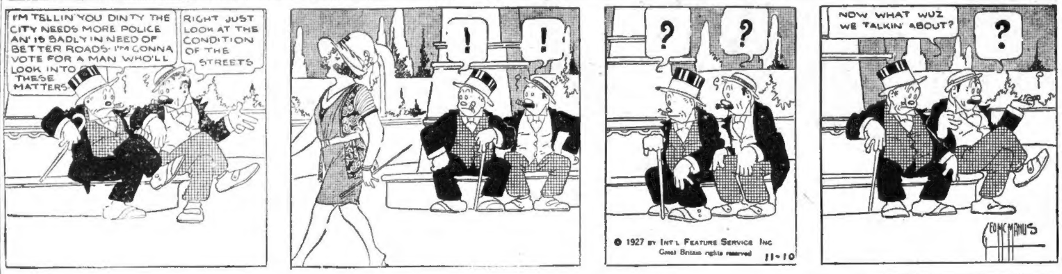

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

Questions on Manners Explained

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

An Autumn Wedding

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—I am to be married. I am having two bridesmaids, and no maid of honor. Is that correct?

2—What would you suggest that the girls wear, Autumn shades or light, summery colors? I am partial to the latter, but one of the girls prefers colors such as burnt orange. She thinks it is rather late in the season for light shades such as blue, orchid and pink. I am wearing white with a wedding veil.

3—My fiance is having his brother as best man. There will not be any ushers. Is it proper for the best man (when the only male attendant) to return down the aisle from the altar? If so, where should he walk?

4—I am having a reception at a restaurant. When is the proper time for me to throw my bouquet?

5—When shall I give the bridesmaids their gifts? Are beaded bags proper to give?

6—How many cars should the bridegroom supply? There are six in the bridal party. Would one large car be sufficient?

Thank you very much, Mrs. Beeckman. I really did not mean to ask so many questions, but they just kept coming.

A READER

1—Yes, it is quite correct for you to have two bridesmaids and no maid of honor. The bridesmaids walk together.

2—You, the bride, are the one to decide what colors the attendants should wear, and the attendant who even ventures a suggestion contrary to yours is showing poor taste. If you wish light colors, by all means have them. It is your wedding, and pastel shades are always correct. Many people do not particularly care for Autumn shades, and there is no reason why they should have them, simply because it is an Autumn wedding. Would you be interested in having an aster wedding? These are September flowers, and of exquisite and soft pastel shades.

3—No, the best man should not take part in the recessional, even though he is to be the only male attendant. Indeed, this would be one great reason why he should not take part in the recessional, for this would make the wedding look like a double wedding. You and the groom walk first in the recessional, and then the bridesmaids, walking together.

4—When you leave to change from your wedding finery to your traveling dress, you throw your bouquet.

5—Give the bridesmaids their gifts some time before the wedding, at a party you give for them, if you do give such a party, or at any other time. Or, you may send them. Yes, a beaded bag would be a charming and most appropriate gift.

6—The groom does not supply the cars except the one for the best man and himself to come to the church from his (the groom's) house. The other cars, the one for the bride and her father or whoever is to give her in marriage, and the one for the bridesmaids, are supplied by the parents of the bride or by the bride herself, if she is paying for the wedding. Why not plan to have one car for the bride and her father and the two bridesmaids?

Three-Minute Trips

By TEMPLE MANNING.

ALTHOUGH many cities, both in the Old World and the New, celebrate "carnival" and although in all these places the "Battle of the Flowers" takes place, there is nowhere that you can get the full appreciation and enjoyment of the event as in Nice, where it originated. As is generally the case, the original always surpasses the imitation.

From the villas and cottages nestled in the shadow of the Alps come hundreds of peasants bearing great baskets of colorful blooms to sell to the fashionable, exclusive wealthy people who come to this part of the Riviera especially for the event. And the customary greeting at this time is to thrust a fragrant nosegay into the face of the greeted. The compliment is naturally returned, and often one or both bouquets are lost in the operation. But some young peasant lad, loitering nearby with open and watchful eyes, has spied the accident, and has darted forward, caught up the dropped flowers and run away, to be lost in the surging crowd, and to resell the flowers.

Peasants and notables, alike drive about the streets of Nice in gayly decorated carriages. None are so poor but that they can afford some sort of equipage, and often, if they cannot afford flowers, they decorate their carts with gayly colored strips of material. Seldom does the day end, however, when a bloom or so has not been retrieved and added to the array.

Nice, itself, on the Mediterranean shore of Southern France, is the ideal place for the occasion, for Nature has outdone herself, and the climate and environment are exquisite. The sun seems to shine brighter, the flowers to be more fragrant, the breezes more cooling than at any other spot on earth, and it has well earned the title of "the life-saving station of the socially bored."

"Speech Is Silver"—is an old truism which becomes literally true in speaking of many of the most chic evening modes. Silver is the vogue of the most fashionably gowned women when in formal evening attire. Silver lame, metal brocade, or lace, as well as silver spangled white satin, is effectively used to create wonderfully alluring gowns.

IS A HEALTHIER STRONGER GIRL

Because She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible thru the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

She tried various medicines. At last, a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Miss Schmidt gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes, "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 113 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon. For sale by all druggists.

THE WITTY SAYINGS OF MEDBURY--BY JOHN P. MEDBURY

SEVERAL New York men have gotten together and formed an Escort Protective Association. They are looking for women with bigger hearts and smaller appetites.

FOR years they've been taking girls out on the American plan, and now they're going to try the Scotch system.

IT'S supposed to be the woman who pays, but nobody ever saw her reeking any disbursements.

A GIRL wants to hop into a taxicab the minute her feet get tired. You'd think she'd never heard of corn plasters.

ONE man has the right idea. He's getting his fiancee broken in to street cars.

HE says that girls will think just as much of you if you bring them up on trolleys.

IT'S foolish to buy flowers for your sweetheart when Congressmen are giving seeds away.

ONE poor fellow had financial reverses last month. He bought breakfast for a chorus girl.

HE was unfortunate. He got her just as she was coming off a diet.

SHE was one of those beautiful girls; the kind that are glorifying the American appetite.

HER escort finally married her and now she's becoming a southpaw from eating in one-arm lunches.

IT'S silly to buy your girl an orchestra seat at the movies when they show the same picture in the gallery.

ONE fellow always carries a couple of mosquitoes in his wallet in case his companion wants a bite after the theatre.

ANOTHER guy usually gives his girl a sandwich so that she won't be too weak to walk home.

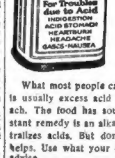

IT isn't fair to make her hike three miles on an empty stomach.

HE cured her of auto-suggestion by hailing a taxicab and reversing the charges.

IN the past, women have been known as expensive luxuries, but it won't be long now until every man will be able to afford one.

Indigestion

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume of acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggists.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

PIMPLES ITCHED VERY MUCH

Face Was Disfigured, Lost Rest. Cuticura Healed.

"I had pimples and blackheads on my face. The pimples were large, red and hard, and scaled over. They itched very much, causing me to scratch, and scraining caused eruptions. I lost much rest, and my face was disfigured.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. As soon as I began using it I could see a change so purchased more, and after using three cakes of Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Philomena Segneri, 350 Grand St., Bridgeport, Conn.

Use Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum daily and keep your skin clear and healthy.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold throughout the world. Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. B, Malden, Mass. Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

FRISBY STANDING FIRM AGAINST CHILD LABOR

By MISTER FRISBY
Congressman-at-Large

Washington—Although I am not convinced that the request is sincere, I have been asked in a number of letters, telegrams and phone calls to state how I stand on Child Labor.

Well, friends, it is like this—

I don't think Child Labor is a very good thing.

I have had my step-children working for the last three years in a coal mine.

And I have about concluded that Child Labor won't get in and dig like grown people. And I have had a hard time trying to get them to bring all their pay to daddy. On pay day I go to the mine and yell down the shaft for them to hurry and bring me their checks. And, do you know, I have had to punish them time after time. They pretend they don't hear me.

Do Your Kidneys Purify Your Blood

The function of the kidneys is to filter and purify the blood. If you are troubled by bladder weakness, getting up nights, backache, headaches, tired, worn-out feeling, your kidneys may need a stimulating and diuretic such as the Cystex 48 hour test.

Just step into any drug store and ask for Cystex. Put it to a 48 hour test. If you soon feel like new, full of pep, able to sleep soundly with pains alleviated it will cost you only 60c, otherwise nothing.

Don't give up. Don't wait. Feel better tomorrow. Learn the joy of healthful living. No need to risk a penny on unproved things because you are the sole judge of your satisfaction under the Cystex legal, binding, money back guarantee.

Infant Care

Mothers, you can't start too early to establish a child's serene and tranquil disposition. Even an infant can have a happy, fretless state of uninterrupted health. What will help do this? A simple, purely vegetable product as old as you are: plain Castoria.

A few drops of Castoria will settle all uneasiness in a jiffy. Will dispel colic or ward off constipation, and just as surely check diarrhea.

In real sickness, call a physician. But many physicians urge only Castoria for those little childish disorders that need nothing more. You need never be afraid to give pure Castoria. It is safe and perfectly harmless, for it contains no paregoric, no opiates, no dope of any kind. At least, this is true of the genuine Fletcher's Castoria"—and that is the kind doctors tell you always to buy.

Fletcher's Castoria is fine for any child. All children love to take it, delicious tasting, and as good as it tastes. Just look for the Fletcher signature on the package and you have the genuine and pure Castoria.

SPECIAL NOTE. With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies," worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

Gentlemen—
I have always felt that a low [illegible] tailor [illegible]. For this reason I grew into the habit of [illegible] a fairly high price for my clothes. About two years ago I began to take [illegible] of materials, workmanship and prices, as shown in windows of Ward's, Inc.
I [illegible] try one of their two-trouser suits and have no cause to regret it. I must say that this suit has given me greater satisfaction than [illegible] have paid a great deal more for.
Respectfully yours,
[illegible]

Dear Editor—
You get enjoyment from [illegible] theatre, [illegible] like a dance at the "Tent" [illegible] Pearl's orchestra [illegible] their popularity over the radio [illegible] to the "Tent" and you will receive more enjoyment there than [illegible].
Its success and popularity is due to its wonderful orchestra, smooth floor and [illegible] to all points. And it doesn't cost any more.
Sincerely,
[illegible] A. De Luca,
1 Conrad St., Dorchester, Mass.

Dear Mr. Editor—
Seth W. Fuller Co., being a very reliable company, I always go there for anything "electrical" that I [illegible].
My father traded there for years and I am sure he was always satisfied with the work he had done [illegible] old concern and [illegible] the same stand for a [illegible] work [illegible] has been turned out perfect [illegible].
Very truly yours,

Old George Ravelin

Report From Mount Hunger

In the State of Vermont the number of homeless victims of the flood now in the care of the American Red Cross is 6,600. A typical case is described in a story which comes from the Little River district of Waterbury, twelve miles northwest of the capital.

Little River, it may be explained, is in the shadow of Mount Hunger:

"George Ravelin is 85 years old, paralyzed from the hips down, was lying today in an unlighted, unheated house that fairly gripped with the water that passed completely over it last week, and which he was found by the Red Cross ... one provisions contained of eight potatoes.

"The old man's plight was discovered last night by searchers from Waterbury, of which this isolated group of farmhouses is a part.

"They had decided in that many inhabitants of the Little River district and regions further along the Little River and the Winooski were in terrible distress.

"After a survey that took all day and lasted well into the night the Waterbury Red Cross and that having case was entirely typical of conditions outside the village.

"Lloyd Squire, a Waterbury newspaper man, crossed the Little River in a flat-bottomed rowboat. He found the old man, a daughter and her four children, and one son of the ... aged paralytic, all cold and wet.

"With no way to cook even the scant provisions too wounds and her children were taken in at the ... across the river. ... ported that they knew deep mud ... a path ... and ... and ... and

"Low in Glory's lap they lie. Though they fell, they fell like stars."

Today

Watching Governor Smith
So Wall Street Shivered
For Childless Women
The World Will Survive
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1927, by Star Company.

GOVERNOR SMITH'S victory in the New York election Tuesday makes politicians thoughtful.

With President Coolidge, whose election was ninety-nine and nine-tenths certain, removing himself from the field, Republicans will need a candidate constructive and convincing.

Wall street shivered on Wednesday, hearing that George F. Baker was ill, and let stock prices drop. That was typical of Wall street nervousness.

Mr. Baker, one of the world's four richest men, was only slightly ill. In any case, like John D. Rockfeller, Mr. Baker is fortunate in having an able son ready to carry on his affairs, and carrying a big part of the load now.

There would be no throwing overboard of stocks or any dangerous happening on the death of any of the big financial four—Rockefeller, Mellon, Baker, Ford.

Which is the richest, nobody knows; not one of the big four knows. Perhaps it is Rockefeller, who has so much under ground.

This news, if confirmed, will lighten the hearts of many women. Dr. Magian, of Manchester, a scientist of standing, says that by an operation in gland transplanting it has been made possible for hitherto childless women to bear children. Only those who know the intense sorrow of a woman, married and childless, can realize what this means.

Professor Gulick, of Columbia, is afraid that our wave of crime, reaching from government officials to bootleggers, will "engulf public life." But it WON'T.

Unsuccessful criminals go to prison, some to the electric chair. Criminals that become rich also become diseased or drunken or both and die out.

Even political crime, selling government oil lands, bribing cabinet officers, etc., will disappear.

The world as a whole IS honest, LIKES honesty, and is steadily getting better. A little set back, just now, from bootlegging, but that will pass.

Socialists in the Reading, Pa., election made a clean sweep, electing the mayor and controlling the city council for the next four years. Biggest Socialist victory since Socialists captured Milwaukee some years ago.

Socialists in Reading will be fortunate if they do as well as Milwaukee did under the Socialists, directed by Victor L.

Pacifists in U. S. Flayed at Exercises on Common

The Fellowship of Youth for Peace and leaders of the National Council of the Federation of Churches were scathingly denounced by Rev. Herbert S. Johnson today in a biting attack on radicals and pacifists at Boston's observance on the Common of the ninth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice.

Begging church members to be on their guard against radical and pacifistic forces, and to call their preachers and pastors to account if guilty of "subversive utterances," he said a real defense was needed against "religious morons."

Radicals came in for attacks by other speakers as well and the Sacco Vanzetti case was mentioned b[illegible] Ma-

PRIEST HELD HAND AND FOOT AND BURNED TO DEATH, EL PASO REPORT

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 11 (I. N. S.)—The tragic (but unconfirmed) story of the burning of a priest upon a pyre made of church property at Union de Tula, State of Jalisco, Mexico, by Mexican soldiers, was contained in a letter published in a Catholic newspaper in El Paso today.

It stated that after the "Liberator Rebels" had been driven from Union de Tula, the soldiers found a priest hiding in a church. Furniture and church ornaments were piled before the church and the priest, bound hand and foot was placed upon the pyre, which was then set on fire.

The priest suffered his martyrdom "with resignation," the letter said, holding a crucifix in his hands and [illegible] the cross as the [illegible]. The body was turned to ashes. Word was received from Guadalajara that "Liberator rebels" have seized the mining town of Mascota, in Jalisco.

MAN AND WIFE SHOT IN RANDOLPH MYSTERY

Brockton, Nov. 11 (A.P.)—Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Freeman of Grove street, Randolph, are at the Brockton Hospital with wounds as the result of a shooting about which little is known. Mrs. Freeman is shot through the abdomen and Mr. Freeman through the right shoulder. Both are on the danger list.

Frank Cameron, a Brockton fireman, brought them to the hospital from Avon where he found them delayed in an automobile owned by Joseph Catone, father of Mrs. Freeman. A fire caused the delay.

Randolph police were in [illegible] Court at the time of the shooting and were an hour late in starting their investigation. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman and Mr. Catone refused to make any statement at the hospital.

The police are searching for Joseph N. Lapaconi, thirty-five, of Randolph, as the man who [illegible] the shooting with a double-barreled shotgun.

DESCRIBES NORTH END SHOOTING

Eleanor Camuso, eight years old, saw her sister, Palmina, 16, Mrs. Mary Novelio and Michael Defazio fall from bullets which, she says, were fired by Joseph Graeco of Medford. The shooting occurred at No. 29 Tileston street, North End. Mrs. Novelio's wound proved fatal and the other victims are in a critical condition.

GIRL'S BODY HELD BY MEDICAL EXAMINER; SALEM MAN QUIZZED

As the funeral of Miss Gertrude L. Hill of Salem, a hair dresser, was getting under way today in that city, Maine and Essex county authorities began an investigation of her death—and the inquiry resulted in a young Salem man being taken to Salem police headquarters for questioning.

After the Salem man had been released, he retained counsel, according to [illegible]

[illegible] Harry W. Rowe of Auburn.

Miss Hill, 23, was at first said to have died of injuries sustained in an auto crash. Then Chief of Police Rowe announced she had died [illegible] the office of Dr. C. E. Donnell, electric physician of Lewiston, Me.

Dr. Donnell is now under indictment on a charge of illegal surgery on a Maine girl.

From County Attorney Lancaster at Auburn, came a request to the Salem police today to have an autopsy performed on Miss Hill's body.

measures designed to prevent disease.

Contributions totaling $1,560, received at the office of Governor Fuller for flood relief, were today handed over to the American Red Cross. The contributions were: G. Pinkson, $5; Jacob Tehulsky, $5; Hudson Coal Company, $1,000; Drysalters Club of New England, $100; Mary Cabot Briggs, $200, National Sportsman, Inc., $250.

These contributions were in addition to a check for $500 received from the Waltham Chamber of Commerce and turned over to the Red Cross two days ago.

Governor John E. Weeks telegraphed the New England Council expressing approval o fthe council's action in assigning one session of the third New England conference, at Springfield, on Friday, Nov. 18, to consideration of needs of the flooded area. Important information regarding flood control is expected to be presented by experts, while Vermont's representatives will tell of conditions and Red Cross officials will describe relief work.

CALL FOR CLOTHING.

Union church services will be held in Montpelier, Vt., City Hall on Sunday, the churches not being yet suitable for use, and all were urged to attend, even if they have to go in their muddy working clothes. Governor Weeks will speak.

Food and clothing was sent into several flood-stricken towns in Northern Vermont today by the Red Cross in response to appeals which said these things were needed, especially children's clothing.

The State board of health took a hand in the enforcement of inoculation in the town of Waterbury, where local authorities were having difficulty. A bulletin posted by the State board warned residents that all persons between the ages of three and fifty must submit to anti-typhoid inoculation or go to the town pesthouse.

Strict orders were also issued in that town for boiling drinking water, because Waterbury's water and sewerage systems have not functioned since the flood.

Sound Taps! And Noise of Presses Is Stilled

Sound Taps.

For once the rumble of the presses stilled, the clatter of linotype machines was silenced, and the rattle of typewriters in the editorial department of the Boston Evening American ended abruptly.

Sound Taps.

It was 11 o'clock. Eleven o'clock of Armistice Day. The trumpeters, Cliff Natalie and William Djerf of the Metropolitan Theatre stood in the hallway of the Hearst building at No. 5 Winthrop square and the silver notes of the requiem to service dead flooded every nook and corner of the plant.

They seemed to say, as Joyce Kilmer, interpreted them:

Go to sleep. Go to sleep.
Slumber well where the shell screamed and fell;
Danger's past. Now, at last,
Go to sleep."

PROBE SALEM GIRL'S DEATH IN MAINE

death came Wednesday when Mrs David Hill of Salem confirmed for newspaper publication in that city, a story to the effect that her daughter had been fatally injured in an automobile accident.

When this message was read at Auburn, the police were baffled. Chief of Police Rowe of the Maine city stating that he had heard neither of an auto crash there, nor of Miss Hill's death in Auburn.

The Chief consulted County and State authorities, and as a result of the conference, immediate action was decided on.

Detectives at Auburn, assigned to the case, learned, the police said, that Miss Hill died Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Margaret Merrill, First street, Auburn, where room and board had been engaged for the girl a few days before, Mrs. Merrill said, by Dr. Donnell. This physician is now facing trial in connection with the death of Miss Nellie Seaton of Richville, Me. It is charged an illegal operation was responsible for Miss Seaton's death.

Mrs. Merrill said that Dr. Donnell had engaged board and room for Miss Hill for two weeks, saying that she was suffering from a bad stomach trouble. The girl went there on November 3 and paid $10 for a week in advance. She was up about the house for the first few days, the woman said, and then, as her condition seemed to be getting worse, took her bed November 6.

husband, Lyle Womack, had a chance to greet her in the pilot's house.

"Hello, kid, how are you?" he said as he embraced and kissed her.

"I never felt better in my life," she said, with a dazzling smile.

She looked as if she had stepped out of a fashion magazine. She wore the latest from Paris—a broadcloth black ensemble trimmed at the neck and bottom with kid fox fur, a black turban, suede gloves buttoned far up the wrist, black shoes and fawn-colored stockings.

Her cheeks were tinted pinker with excitement than the cluster of orchids she wore.

"If Miss Elder wants to try it again I'll be tickled to death to go with her," declared George Haldeman her co-pilot on the ocean flight.

"I have a new plane in mind," said Ruth. "A duplicate of the American Girl."

"I want to keep on flying," she declared emphatically.

"Will you do so if your husband objects, and if he wants you to return to Panama and keep house for him?" she was asked.

"I'm sorry," was her reply, "but I'm going to keep on flying."

"Would you wash dishes for your husband?" was another question.

"I have washed dishes for him," she shot back.

"I have made no motion picture contracts," she said.

"Would you like to go in the movies?" she was asked.

"I don't think I have any movie ability," she replied.

"How about the stage?"

"I don't know that I could act," she said modestly.

Miss Elder smiled derisively as she denied a published story that she had crawled out on the wings of the plane while she was flying the ocean. "Impossible," was her comment. "I didn't crawl out on the plane until after we came down in the water beside the tanker."

Women's Chance For Service Is Here—Pershing

New York, Nov. 11 (I.N.S.).—"We all know well what the American woman gave in the World War. The mothers, the sisters, the wives, the sweethearts of our men were the real heroes of the war," General John J. Pershing said in an Armistice Day message to the women of America, printed in McCall's Magazine.

"With all the American woman did in those days, her opportunity for still greater service is at hand.

"If the Gold Star mother and her sisters will strive for an America, virile, efficient, God-fearing and law-abiding—an America adequately prepared against the armed aggression from without and the stealthy propagandist from within—they will best advance the cause of enduring peace among all peoples."

PASTOR CALLS FOR LOST WIFE IN WOODS

rowed automobile and drove to a strip of woods in this hill region, where his wife had been reported to have been last seen.

He had aided others in searching all day, but the notion to venture forth alone and to try out the influence of his own voice appealing to her, if she still happened to be concealed in the neighborhood, prompted him to try the odd experiment.

"I tramped and shouted for more than an hour," he said, "but to no avail. There came back to me only the hollow echo of my own words."

In spite of his splendid physique, the strain is gradually telling on the young preacher.

"Every hour I spend in resting seems like stealing something from my children," he added. "I feel that restoring their mother to them is my duty."

Dr. Forbush led a posse of police, reporters and newspaper photographers that ransacked every hayloft, pig pen and shanty for miles from 10 last night, when it was figured Mrs. Forbush would be forced to take shelter from the rain and biting cold, until long after midnight.

The party brought along a powerful police searchlight. Almost every member of the band carried a flashlight. It was a melo-dramatic hunt in the mows and cob-webbed lofts of isolated barns.

When the searching party returned about 1 a. m. they learned that a woman answering Mrs. Forbush's description had been seen miles away Thursday afternoon on the main highway to Lebanon and Canaan.

Chief of Police Daniel E. White received a telephone call at 9 a. m. today that a woman dressed in brown came out of a pasture in Charlestown, ten miles from here, and was seen by a farmer to hail and enter an automobile with a New York number plate and drive in the direction of Bellows Falls, fifteen miles away. This clue looked so good that the man telephoned twice within five minutes.

Roy Osborne, a farmer living on the main highway in East Grantham, 20 miles from here, reported to Chief White that he saw a woman in brown who seemed to be a hiker, suddenly leave the road and jump into a thicket when an automobile passed her.

Members of the family failed to identify the Boston man and he was released.

WELLESLEY'S JUNIORS OUT ON LAKE WABAN

MEDFORD PASTOR RISKS LIFE IN FIRE FOR FLAG

IDENTIFIED BY TWO VICTIMS WHO SURVIVE

With averted face, turned away after one quick glance, Palmina Camuso, sixteen-year-old North End girl, lying in a Haymarket Relief Hospital bed, identified Joseph Graeco of Medford as the man who shot her, killed a woman in the same house and wounded a man neighbor rushing to the rescue.

The man neighbor, M[illegible] De Fazio, 23, also identified Graeco as the assailant. De Fazio is in another room of the hospital with a bullet wound in his groin. The girl was shot through [illegible].

After being identified, Graeco, according to police, admitted doing the shooting. He was booked for murder at the Hanover street station and a guard was placed over [illegible] cell to prevent any possible attempt at suicide.

Mrs. Mary Novello, 50, was the woman killed when she attempted to protect the girl from [illegible].

Graeco was arrested [illegible] by Sergeant Mooney and Inspector Cavagnaro of the Boston police after an all-night chase through many of the Boston suburbs.

The shooting occurred in [illegible] street in a house where both Mrs. Novello and the Camuso girl lived.

GIRL EYE-WITNESS.

De Fazio, living on the third floor, was shot in the abdomen as he raced up the stairs to aid the two women. Behind him he left his young wife who, two hours previously, had given birth to a baby.

It was the eight-year-old sister of Palmina Camuso that gave the police their first clue to the slayer. She is Eleanor Camuso, eye-witness to the tragedy.

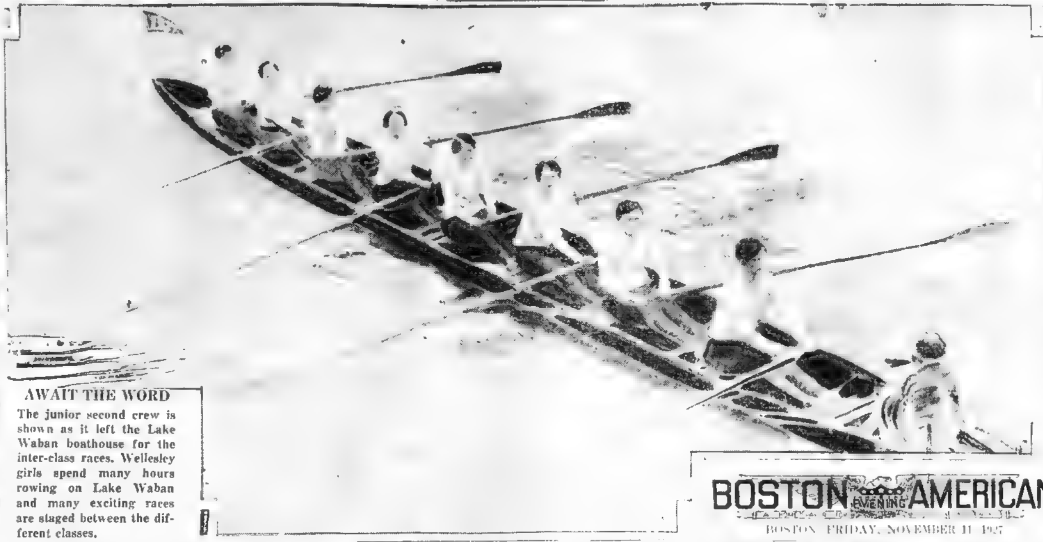

Eleanor told the police she saw Graeco hiding on the roof of her home, waiting for Palmina, to whose heart he had laid unsuccessful siege for some time. Only two days ago, the little girl said, Palmina had told Graeco to "go away and don't bother her any more."

Palmina entered the house, as her assailant lay in wait, but, instead of going directly to her flat she entered that of Mrs. Novello for a brief chat before retiring.

ASK MORE PAY FOR CUSTOMS EMPLOYES

Declaring that allocation of customs salaries was "imperative to the future success and morale of the customs service," W. W. L[illegible]kin, collector of the port, today faced a congressional committee in his office at the Custom House in an appeal for a salary adjustment for his 640 employes.

The congressmen, members of the subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee, included Isaac Bacharach of New Jersey, chairman, Henry W. Watson of Pennsylvania, Charles [illegible] of Ohio, [illegible] and Clement C. Dickinson of Missouri.

"The port of Boston, [illegible] the sub ports and [illegible] districts of Worcester and Spr[illegible] is responsible for the collection of more than a million dollars [illegible] yet a responsible employe [illegible] think of now, in the [illegible] Moines and [illegible] maximum salary of $[illegible] in keeping with [illegible] report," said [illegible].

"The [illegible] Keddy after [illegible] tion of this office [illegible] three days, is to my mind [illegible] a most [illegible] salary adjustment for [illegible] district. When it was [illegible] several years ago it [illegible] shivers down the spines of [illegible] ployes.

"We have stood by and [illegible] postal, State employes and [illegible] cial employes around us receive adjustments in their wages. It is only natural that such a condition would

Admiral's Daughter Christens ~ World's Largest Submarine

MRS. PHILIP MASON SEARS

The daughter of Rear-Admiral William D. MacDougall, commandant of the Portsmouth, N. H., Navy Yard, christened the V-4 as it was launched at North Shore yard.

JUST BEFORE THE GIANT UNDERSEA CRAFT LEFT THE WAYS

In addition to being the world's largest submarine, the V-4 is also the first mine-laying submarine laid down by the Navy Department. It embodies all desirable features of mine-laying submarines previously built for other navies.

TEN APPLY FOR EVERY JOB IN 'DRY ARMY'

Washington, Nov. 11 (I.N.S.).—Another final and "acid test" for Federal prohibition enforcement was announced today at the Treasury Department.

Despite the fact that the reorganization law has been effective since last April, the new set-up cannot be put in effect until early next year. It was designed by General Lincoln C. Andrews before his retirement.

In the 1929 budget Congress will be asked for $13,000,000 to enforce prohibition. No increase over this figure will be demanded by the Treasury until the dry bureau determines whether or not the present enforcement system is effective.

An unprecedented rush for prohibition jobs has made it impossible for the civil service to complete examinations and certify lists of eligibles to the treasury. There are ten applicants for every one of the 3,500 jobs in the dry army, despite the low salary range of from $1,800 to $6,000 annually.

The commission postponed certification of eligibles from Nov. 1 to Dec. 1, but indications point to completion of the reorganization by February 1.

Increased use of the padlock injunction in enforcement operations against retail bootleggers and other dispensing agencies will be among the features of the 1928 program according to officials.

THOMPSON PLANS CONTROL OF ILLINOIS DELEGATION

Mt. Carmel, Pa., Nov. 11 (A.P.)—Mayor William Thompson of Chicago believes the decision of the Illinois Supreme Court declaring the Illinois primary law to be unconstitutional has given him added power in the naming of delegates to the next National Republican Convention.

He predicted that owing to the decision he would be able to control the entire block of 61 Illinois votes. Pointing out that under the convention system it would be easy for a man with the Cook County delegation solidly behind him to draw sufficient support from down state by "trading" to choose an entire state ticket.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON HAPPENINGS IN SOCIETY

Lydia Constance Follett Weds Walter Phelps Jacob at North Attleboro

A RADIANTLY PRETTY BRIDE, A FLOCK OF ATTENDANTS EVER SO SMARTLY costumed, a wedding company small and distinctive and of cosmopolitan importance, such were details to mark the nuptials of Miss Lydia Constance Follett and Walter Phelps Jacob, celebrated yesterday in Grace Episcopal Church down in North Attleboro. Society in three cities, Boston, Providence and New York was interested in the marriage of the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Woodbridge Follett to the young New Yorker

THE BRIDE'S ATTIRE WAS RICH, CREAMY WHITE SATIN, FASHIONED WITH extreme simplicity sans adornment of any sort as [illegible] so soft and gleaming should be fashioned. The train swept a long and slender length to a rounded edge matching the outline of the lovely piece of point de Venise that formed the veil and the snug little cap. For ornament the bride wore a long rope of small perfectly matched pearls, and her bouquet was of roses and camelias

BRIDE ATTENDANTS WERE SMART IN THE EXTREME IN COSTUMES THAT were subtle blendings of tawny Autumn colors Sashes and chapeaux and frocks and bouquets ranged through every golden yellow and russet brown of autumnal coloring. Their frocks were of transparent velvet and their chapeaux likewise of velvet Their shoes were satin and their bouquets enormous affairs, were clusters of tiny chrysanthemums, Ward roses and the gorgeous new yellow orchids smart flower shops are showing as a variation of the old favorite

MATRONS TO THE NUMBER OF THREE AND MAIDS TO THE NUMBER OF three wore these lovely ensembles Mrs Ira Richards, Jr., of New York and Long Island, was matron of honor Miss Elliot Chace of Providence was maid of honor and others in the train were Miss Florence Norris, Mrs. Harry Otto Gauner, Mrs William Palmer Dixon and Miss Ellen Preston, representative of both Providence and New York, and in each case either relative or close friend of the bride. A set superbly decorative in a wedding procession.

IMMENSELY DECORATIVE, ALSO, WERE THE YOUNG MEN WITH PLACES IN the entourage Their formal afternoon attire made [illegible] balance for bridal finery and gorgeously attired attendants Leonard Jacob 2d was best man, and the ushers were Messrs Richards Follett Byron Egan [illegible] Manning Jacob Lawrence Jacob, 2d William Chanler, Grover Loening [illegible] Waite and Hugh Hamilton. Mr Austin Follett gave his daughter in marriage

MRS. FOLLETT'S COSTUME WAS OF VELVET A DEEP RICH BLUE FOR FROCK and chapeau and buckled shoes At her shoulder she wore an enormous cluster of orchids, and her jewels were pearls and diamonds Mrs William Jacob mother of the bridegroom wore black with pearls Miss Hattie Richards wore a costume of orchid velvet Immediately after the ceremony the guests motored over to the Follet home in Elm street for the reception and wedding breakfast

MISS SUSAN WIGGLESWORTH is a young set belle and an ardent sportswoman, as we see her herewith in field hockey outfit.

The Frank Stearnses to Give Tea to Two Granddaughters

THE "JUST OUT" SET IS, BY PRACTICE, BECOMING PERFECT at this thing of "going on" from one festivity to another. Today the buds and their attending swains regard with keenest anticipation a more than full program Prior to dining and dancing this evening, as guests of Mr and Mrs Norton Wigglesworth, in honor of Miss Susan Wigglesworth, they may sip tea at the Harold Reads' home in Cambridge to meet Miss Peggy Read formally, or at Mr. and Mrs. Carl [illegible]'s in Brimmer street to meet Miss Sylvia Sweet

PRIOR TO THESE FUNCTIONS CERTAIN DEBUTANTES TAKE luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton as guests at the affair Mrs Archie [illegible] for Miss [illegible] Moriarty of Boston and Newport There [illegible] of entertainment for one day Mrs Harris Livermore [illegible] her previously planned house dance for Miss Elizabeth Livermore to Saturday evening instead of this evening Mr and Mrs. Wigglesworth begin festivities with a large dinner, at the Milton Club, [illegible] a pleasant and favorite establishment, the dance is also given.

MR AND MRS READ HAVE THE TEA FOR THEIR PRETTY [illegible] daughter at their Cambridge home, in Appleton street. Miss Marjory Morrill, tennis champion and post debutante, guides the pourers in their duties Her staff consists of Miss Margaret Leland, Miss Alice de Normandie, Miss Evelyn Ames, Miss Virginia Sargent, Miss Janice Vaughan Miss Katharine Adams, Miss Sylvia Weld, Miss Dorothea [illegible], Miss Betty [illegible], Miss Ellen Endicott Miss Elizabeth [illegible], Miss Elizabeth [illegible] Miss Elise Read Miss Jane Prouty, Miss Margery Sachs, Miss Emma Ward Miss Katherine Codman and Miss Laura Lea Robertson

TOMORROW THIS VERY IMPOSING SCHEDULE OF BUD AFFAIRS [illegible] seconded with another almost, but not quite so heavy A [illegible] tea at the Hotel Somerset is on the list, with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stearns the hosts for their granddaughters, the Misses Emily and Elizabeth Prescott, daughters of the Hon Francis Prescott and Mrs [illegible] of Grafton The Livermore house dance in the evening takes [illegible] the Livermore home at the foot of [illegible] Hill a choice bevy of the [illegible] set. The Livermores have [illegible] a most picturesque [illegible] and decoratively perfect in [illegible] Spanish manner A lovely setting for a young set party

What the Name "MURDOCK" Stands For In New England And In RADIO

The Wm. J. Murdock Co. is located in Chelsea, Mass., and their factory occupies over 90,000 feet of floor space. Here they have been making radio and telephone apparatus for over thirty years Thousands of their radio sets are giving excellent service in New England and many thousands throughout the United States. This year in particular the sale of Murdock sets throughout the country has jumped by leaps and bounds because of the added power afforded by their 7-tube Neutrodyne Sets. Every New Englander should have a radio set built in New England

7 TUBES! Shields! Single Dial!

(Illuminated Dial)

Last year we sold 2650 5-Tube Three-Dial Sets. The set we offer this year is not a 5-Tube set, nor even a 6 Tube set, but a powerful 7-Tube Shielded, Single-Dial Neutrodyne set, much larger in size and is as far ahead of the average 6-Tube set as the latter is conceded to be ahead of a 5-Tube set.

7 TUBES means added power. SHIELDED means elimination of noises caused by internal coupling between stages, and SINGLE DIAL means simplicity and convenience.

These sets are the latest model turned out by the Wm. J. Murdock Co., and are licensed under patents of the Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric Co., the Westinghouse Co., the Hazeltine Co. and the Latour Corp.

ILEANA UNVEILS FIRST MONUMENT TO FATHER

Bazarjik, Rumania, Nov. 11 (A.P.)—Princess Ilen atoday unveiled the first monument to be erected in honor of her father, the late King Ferdinand

Funds for the monument were contributed by the officers and men [illegible] dere to the 4th Rumanian Cavalry Division, of which the late monarch was once commander.

The Princess looked the picture of health after her fortnight's stay at the seashore.

SECRETARY OF LABOR PREDICTS ANOTHER WAR

Washington, Nov. 11.—The World War settled one thing and many expect another one before many years, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis declared in a speech to the Military Order of the World War.

"There are war clouds on the horizon at the present time, and predictions are freely made that another war will come before many years," Davis said.

"It is my belief that we should keep out of European squabbles if we can, but if conditions arise which make it incumbent upon us to intervene, as we did in the late war, we should be prepared."

'TEA FOR TWO' IS UPSET BECAUSE 'BABY IS TWINS'

Chicago, Nov. 11 (A.P.)—When Vincent Youmans composed "Tea for Two" he could not have expected that "two" was a digit that presaged litigation both for himself and his father, Vincent Youmans, Sr.

Two actions have been filed by Mrs. Youmans the composer's chorus girl wife, in Chicago courts. One seeks separate maintenance from the husband; the other is for $100,000 against Youmans' sire and its nature is not revealed.

The younger Youmans before leaving for New York said he supposed the suit against his father was for "alienation of affections or something like that."

The "two" whom counsel for Mrs. Youmans blame for the separate maintenance suit are twins, born to the couple about two and a half months ago shortly after the Youmans had signed a "separation contract," John J. Fruchtl, attorney for Mrs. Youmans said that under the contract Youmans agreed to pay his wife $100 a week for herself and the "child" that was expected. Birth of twins was an unlooked for contingency. The mother now needs larger weekly payments to meet the demands of a larger family.

Mrs. Youmans was unable to appear in court, her attorneys reporting her suffering in a Chicago hospital from a serious breakdown subsequent to the birth of the twins.

Fruchtl, presenting the motion for alimony declared that Youmans had an income of $10,000 a week and as the wife and her babies are without means of support. He said there had been a separation agreement between the Youmans but he called it inequitable and not binding on the wife because it was entered into while she was in a weak physical condition.

Before her marriage early this year Mrs. Youmans was in the chorus of one of her husband's shows. His best known contributions to the musical comedy stage are "No, No, Nanette" and "Hit the Deck."

COXEY'S ARMY STOPS FOR ARMISTICE TRIBUTE

Bath, Eng., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—J. Cook's little "Coxey's Army" of unemployed Welsh miners marching on London to press for action on the unemployment situation, observed the Armistice Day silence at 11 o'clock today and then started over the hills toward London.

Nearly half of the marchers were without overcoats and some were forced to quit unless given more clothing. The leaders, however, say they have no extra supplies of clothing. The marchers expect to arrive at Chippenham about dusk.

BRIDE OF 19 CHARGES SHE WAS WED UNDER DURESS

Worcester, Nov. 11.—Charging marriage under duress, and that she was spirited away to Windham, N. H., to be married Aug. 25 of this year, Freda Kourt, 19, of this city, has filed a petition for annulment of the marriage in probate court. She claims her marriage in Windham to Solomon Kourt, also of this city, is illegal because she was grossly defrauded by the conduct of her husband, and because the marriage was under compulsion.

Berger, whose theory includes "absolute obedience to law" Berger, well educated and intelligent, knows that where the majority can rule, having the vote, there is no excuse for any action, except at the polls.

The world accepts changes as they come. Not long ago crusaders in New York tried to prevent bicycle riding by women, called immodest, luring ladies too far from the house. Now they go 1,000 miles in motors, or try to fly over the ocean.

[illegible] aldermen decided that women must be forbidden to smoke in public restaurants. Now the big Pennsylvania Railroad puts ladies' smoking cars on its first-class trains from New York to Washington.

Nevertheless, women should not smoke until they are through with child bearing. Each child should have half a chance, and gets it, no matter what his father may do, when his mother doesn't smoke or drink strong liquor before he is born.

The French Senate formally approves and demands moving pictures in all the schools of France, from kindergarten to higher institutes of research.

French schools, far ahead of our backward public school system, already have 4,000 projecting machines and several million feet of educational film. Edward Herriot, French minister of public instruction, says moving pictures must be used to the limit to educate children in schools and also in world-wide propaganda. One good picture would teach children in fifteen minutes more about Lincoln or Washington than books could teach in fifteen weeks. Mr. Eastman, in Rochester, and William Fox, in New York, are making educational pictures. The cities and the nation should finance them.

Prohibition agents in Detroit reveal a brewery underground, occupying a whole block. Three hundred thousand gallons were seized. The bootleggers made tunnels under other men's property and were doing business without paying rent. Armor plates protected this large "blind pig."

Hi-jackers, gentlemen whose profession is holding up bootleggers and stealing their poison, shot and stopped a truck driver yesterday. This truck was loaded with newspaper ink, they let him go. While ink is not a desirable beverage, a glass of it would do less harm than some whiskey that "intelligent" Americans drink in these days.

AID RED CROSS, IS PLEA BY COOLIDGE

Washington, Nov. 11 (A.P.)—Calling upon the people of America for support in its relief and [illegible] work, the American Red Cross today initiated its annual enrollment campaign.

With its forces already [illegible] in mitigating the suffering caused by the [illegible] flood, [illegible] members [illegible] ships and [illegible]

As president of the Red Cross, President Coolidge in a statement directed the attention of the country to the work of the Red Cross and said that "the unprecedented demands" of the year year "have demonstrated most forcibly to the American people the necessity for still further increasing the support which we must give to this great humanitarian institution."

A goal of five million members has been set. Individual chapters have been given quotas to fill and many have voluntarily promised that they will be exceeded.

FORMER EDITH GOULD'S CHILDREN ESCAPE FIRE

Easthampton, N. Y., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—St[illegible] Wainwright, young grand[illegible] the late George J. Gould, escaped from a fire that destroyed [illegible] of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll L. Wainwright, late at night.

Mr. and Mrs. Wainwright, the former Edith Gould, were away. Servants and firemen searched the blazing structure in [illegible] before the youngsters were found on the lawn of the estate, "[illegible]," calmly watching the fire.

The fire was caused by a defective flue. Volunteer firemen [illegible] a two-mile run from the town, but were unable to save the house. The loss is estimated at $75,000.

DE VALERA TO START DUBLIN NEWSPAPER

Dublin, Nov. 11.—An attempt is to be made to raise $[illegible] in the United States to [illegible] De Valera found an Irish [illegible] newspaper in this city, it was stated. The total cost will be [illegible] million dollars.

G. O. P. Conference Soon

Washington, Nov. 11.—William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican National Committee, is preparing for [illegible] December 6, when a convention city will be selected.

SAID IT "WITH CANDY," AND NOW HE'S SORRY

London, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Saying it with chocolates is just as dangerous as writing love letters in England.

There was only one letter, and that not a very sweet one, introduced in court when Miss Edith May Batchelor sued Alfred Edmund for breach of promise.

But a jury, on which there were three women, decided that the sending of chocolates by the defendant to the plaintiff every week was evidence of Gibbens's intentions and awarded Miss Batchelor £100 to solace her wounded affections.

MARCONI APPEARS TO BE SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

London, Nov. 11.—A bulletin issued by the physicians to Senator Marconi, who has been ill here for several days, states:

"If there is any change at all in the senator's condition, he is slightly improved."

MANIAC SOUGHT WHO BOMBED HIGH SCHOOL

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 11.—A maniac was hunted today by the police as the person who placed a dynamite bomb at the entrance to the new West Pittston High School, which was partially wrecked by the resulting explosion.

Damage to the $500,000 school building is estimated at $10,000, while nearby structures suffered to the extent of $20,000 or more.

OTHER LOTS TO BORROW FROM WARNER

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

Los Angeles, Nov. 11.—The closed door of Warner Brothers is giving the other film companies a chance to do a little borrowing. The borrowing is already on, and it is fairly certain by the time Mr. and Mrs. Jack Warner sail for Europe all the best players and directors in that organization will be working on some other lot. From the offers, too, it is easy to see who is the most popular.

The Warners are sailing on the Aquitania early in January for a holiday and a business trip abroad. They will meet Al Jolson and Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Zanuck, Warners' general manager, in London. The Zanucks are sailing December 10 on the Ile de Paris for the premiere of "The Jazz Singer" on January 13. But long before that we will find Michael Curtiz, the Hungarian director wielding the megaphone elsewhere, Monte Blue emoting on another lot, and both Dolores Costello and May McAvoy guest players at some adjacent studio.

I've always found, in my career, where there's a lot of smoke there's fire. That is why I believe that Eric von Stroheim really is returning to Universal to make a picture, although everyone at Universal denies it vociferously. Good for $1 word, isn't it?).

At any rate, Von Stroheim, who is the world's wonder when it comes to using ten times as much footage as necessary, but who, in spite of this fault nearly always makes a good picture, had the satisfaction of being called back to Paramount-Lasky to put together "The Wedding March," which had been taken apart and re-edited. He has also, it is said on excellent authority, been offered a picture at Universal.

The power of the press and an expose of yellow journalism (phew!) are promised by Allan Dwan in his next picture, "Headlines." Ben Hecht, who was a contemporary of mine way back in the mid-Victorian age in Chicago, has furnished the masterpiece. Well, Ben knows his newspapers—I'll say that for him.

Milton Sills has found his favorite leading lady, and, fortunately for him, First National agrees that she is just right for his picture. I refer to the lady who became Mrs. Sills about a year ago. Doris Kenyon is her screen name and she is enough of a personality in her own right not to lose her identity.

COURT BLAMES AUTO VICTIM

Miss Annie Hanni[illegible] sixty-two, a domestic of No. 2 [illegible] street, Lynn, was entirely at fault at the time she was killed [illegible] motor vehicle while crossing Western avenue in that city on October 24, according to a decision by Edward M. Ho[illegible] associate justice of the Lynn district court.

'GRASSHOPPER' NEW COLOR IN BONNETS

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 11 (A.P.)—The grasshopper, the watermelon, the blue skies and a cereal are among the objects from which the colors of new Spring bonnets have been chosen.

These colors have been announced at the convention here of the Millinery Association of America as among a group selected by the American Color Card Association for use of makers of women's wear. Merchandise of the new Spring colors is to be released soon after Thanksgiving day, milinery men [illegible].

Grasshopper green described as new green softened with a [illegible] gold caste, blue skies [illegible] a [illegible] blue with a slight lavender caste, grapenuts, of light brown caste to match "the cereal bearing the name," are some of the [illegible].

OTHER SHADES.

Watermelon red, a soft hue the color of the ripe watermelon [illegible] bel.e, a soft peach pink with a [illegible] caste, Kasha beige, a new [illegible] color favored in [illegible] and dress reseglow, a new honey shade with a rose caste; [illegible] shade softened [illegible] a [illegible] shade favoring the [illegible] rather than the [illegible] rose, are announced as some of the [illegible] new colors.

What is foreseen as a growing tendency toward [illegible] among American women [illegible] to [illegible] its effect on hat shapes.

TOWARD ELEGANCE.

The new models will trend toward elegance and [illegible] silhouette, calling for rich embroideries, smart touches of straw, novelty braids and other bits of [illegible] coloring. There will be no radical departure from present [illegible] however, nor will comfort be sacrificed.

Hats will be of a [illegible] type, made to fit the [illegible] comfortably with smaller or [illegible] chapeaus continuing the [illegible] except for southern resort wear [illegible] the large "flop" variety [illegible] in vogue.

BOSTON DELEGATES TO N. E. COUNCIL NAMED

C. B. Burleigh of [illegible] Electric Company, Frederick [illegible] roll of the National Shawmut Bank and Charles F. Weeks of the [illegible] National Bank, have been appointed as delegates from the Boston Chamber of Commerce to the New England Council meeting at Springfield November 17 and 18. Ex-Governor Channing H. Cox has been named as an alternate.

The board of directors of the Boston Better Business Bureau [illegible] named Sidney Conrad, president of Conrad & Comanpy, [illegible] berg, president of [illegible] Company and William F. [illegible] advertising manager of the Boston Evening Transcript, to represent the bureau.

17 HORSES, 10 COWS AND 35 HOGS LOST IN FIRE

Limestone, Me., Nov. 11 (A.P.)—All farm buildings, together with 17 horses, 10 cows and 35 hogs, belonging to Howard Nichols were burned shortly after midnight.

Nichols braved the fire to enter the barn and liberate the horses but the smoke crazed beasts fought their rescuer. Nichols was injured in their frenzied dash and was forced to abandon them. The loss was estimated at $40,000.

BELGIAN FLIER HURT IN FORCED LANDING

Le Bourget Airdrome, France, Nov. 11 (I.N.S.)—The Belgian aviator, Medaets, who hopped off at Courtral at 7:48 o'clock this morning in an attempt to beat Clarence D. Chamberlin's distance record, was seriously injured when he was compelled by bad weather to make a forced landing at Ferte-sur-Aube. [illegible] was slightly injured.

[illegible] were flying a Belgian [illegible] christened "Queen Elizabeth," [illegible] to make a non-stop [illegible] the Belgian Congo.

Child Injured

Benjamin Katz, five years old, of No. 64 Iffley road, West Roxbury, received cuts about the face when he was struck by an automobile near Walnut avenue.

Gives Victim Farm and Is Banished for Shooting

Ripley, Miss., Nov. 11 (A.P.)—George Dees, Mississippi farmer, attentively listened while Circuit Judge Thomas E. Pegram exiled him from his native state, bowed his head and then walked out of court for an unannounced destination.

Dees was banished from Mississippi forever because he shot and maimed for life Zach Massey, a well known citizen. Under an agreement reached between Dees and Massey, which Judge Pegram agreed to, Dees deeded to Massey his farm, offered to plead guilty to a charge of carrying a pistol and then leave the State. The farm was valued at around $1,200.

"You are to leave this State," Judge Pegram told him, "and you are never to return. If you do return you will at once be sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary. I hope you will start life anew and make of yourself a better man than it would be possible for you to make in your old haunts."

ALL-NIGHT HUB CHASE OF SIX AUTO THUGS

After speeding about Boston all [illegible] automobile, at one [illegible] police sergeant [illegible] Warren W. Living[illegible] squadron [illegible] six young men [illegible] capture today.

[illegible] number of [illegible] where it was [illegible] they are fairly confident [illegible] occupants but up to [illegible] although the careening [illegible] was seen again and again, [illegible] been unable to run it [illegible].

The six youths [illegible] the car from [illegible] garage at 5 [illegible] and some of the [illegible] squadron [illegible] who were in a [illegible] who became suspi[illegible] set out to [illegible].

Almost at the start the young men [illegible] on the trailing police, [illegible] although the [illegible] They were [illegible] a considerable distance be[illegible].

It is understood the suspected [illegible] were about to inaugurate a [illegible] robbery campaign [illegible] for that reason Captain Living[illegible] on the alert.

WITHOUT LIGHTS.

[illegible] the machine appeared [illegible] at a rap[illegible] without lights. Later the machine stopped at a Cambridge [illegible] filling station, where a [illegible] of gas was taken aboard, and a short time afterward was reported in front of a restaurant across the [illegible] in Cambridge where the six youths breakfasted heartily and then refused to pay.

RETURNS TO HUB.

The machine with its occupants then returned to Boston, where it proceeded to sweep up and down the main streets of the city apparently at will with Capt. Livingston's men hopelessly outdistanced, but still game.

The fugitive machine was reported from Columbus avenue and then from Charles street, and then from other sections of the city, each time travelling at a [illegible] rate of speed and as far as known unchallenged by any other police officers.

If the young men had any window smashing designs they apparently abandoned them for the pleasure of leading the police a merry chase as no broken windows were reported.

Also, as far as could be learned Sergt. Wallingford's shots failed to injure the occupants of the car, whose spirits at last reports appeared to be undampened. The "Flying Squadron" was still on the [illegible].

FINED FOR ASSAULT ON LEXINGTON WOMAN

Leland H. Emery of Lexington was fined $10 in Brighton district court today after he pleaded guilty to assault and battery on Mrs. Carolyn D. Howe of Lexington. Emery said he became provoked out[illegible] Harvard Stadium on the [illegible] of the Dartmouth game when [illegible] driven by Guy Howe [illegible] of Mrs. Howe, drove close [illegible] and his mother-in-law, who [illegible] on foot. LYNN TEACHER'S CASE CONTINUED FOR WEEK

Absence of a Lynn school committeeman led Judge Pierce in Supreme Court today to continue for a week the hearing on a petition of Mrs. Delia M. Clifford for a writ of mandamus to compel Mayor Bauer of Lynn and the school committee to reinstate her as a teacher in Lynn schools.

Since beginning her action, several months ago, Mrs. Clifford has been elected a member of the new Lynn school committee.

'LINDY' RAPS 'AIR SCHOOLS'

Condemns Those That Graduate Fliers After Only a Few Hours of Training

Warns of Others That Escape Federal Control Within Their Own State Borders

(Copyright by the Associated Press)

New York, Nov. 11 (11.)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh has responded to a request by the Associated Press that he write his impressions on aviation in America and its future. Based upon his observations during his recent aviation flying tour of the United States under the auspices of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics.

In Colonel Lindbergh's statement he stresses the menace to aviation caused by improper training schools His statement follows:

COL. C. A. LINDBERGH

"One of the gravest problems facing the advance of aviation is that of personnel. Flying is safe today, but it must be combined with training and experience.

"We have not yet reached the stage in the development of aircraft where the pilot plays a minor part in the operation of an airplane and until we progress to that stage it is essential to have trained and experienced operators for safe flying.

"It has been strikingly demonstrated both in America and in Europe that there need be no fear for personal safety in traveling with modern equipment over organized airways.

"There is another phase of commercial aviation, however, which is in need of regulation. There are not enough experienced pilots to meet the rapidly increasing demand for their services.

"New men must be trained and schools have been established for their training. In these schools lies the greatest menace confronting aviation.

LACK EXPERIENCE

"Young America wants to fly and is going to fly. Thousands of young men are entering and preparing to enter aviation schools. Most of them have limited finances and consequently must enter a school which has a small tuition fee.

"Unfortunately there are many of these institutions operating today and often graduating students with less than ten hours of flying training.

"These graduates must find some way to continue flying, and since they have not money enough to rent or buy a plane they must also earn at least their expenses as they fly.

"This situation results in inexperienced pilots carrying passengers for hire, often under adverse conditions, in flights which really should be under supervision as part of their training.

"We have surprisingly few accidents on our airlines and with our experienced operators, but we read only too often of crashes which upon investigation are found in almost every instance to to have resulted from inexperience and lack of judgment on the part of the pilot.

"Apparently the only method of combatting the existing situation is first through regulation of flying schools and second through regulation of the qualifications required of a pilot

ESCAPE U. S. CONTROL

"The Department of Commerce, through the Bureau of Aeronautics, is regulating interstate flying very successfully, but it has no control over flying activities within individual States, and, of course, the student pilot confines himself to the borders of his own State during his most dangerous period.

"The next advance will come through regulation of air activities, including certain minimum requirements of flying school courses, but before extensive regulation can become effective the Department of Commerce must be given the right to regulate all flying activities instead of interstate traffic only.

"A number of States have adopted the Department of Commerce regulations, but the majority have either no regulation whatsoever or have enacted special rules which will in the end only serve to retard aeronautical development.

"I say this in the interest of the safety of the men who want to be pilots and of those of our people who want to fly."

DAVID I. WALSH IS 55 TODAY

Today Senator David I. Walsh celebrated his 55th birthday anniversary by participating in Armistice Day observances in Rutland and Boston.

He spent the morning quietly at his home in Clinton in business conferences. His afternoon schedule called for an address at exercises held at the United States Veterans' Hospital at Rutland, after which he was to motor to Boston to participate in a banquet of local Greek societies.

PRINCE EDDIE WISE TO AMERICAN LUGGAGE

London, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales knows his luggage. At an Armistice week exhibition of the handicraft of disabled ex-service men he was shown a model of a Boston bag by Captain James Scott of Sheffield. When the Prince left the booth Captain Scott was observed laughing heartily.

"What's the joke?" he was asked.

"The Prince opened the bag," said the captain, "peered inside, then asked 'since the bag has an American name where is the false bottom for the whiskey bottle?'"

All in Town Go to Wedding; 26th in 100 Years

Stoke Pero, Eng., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The first wedding in the parish church here in five years was the 26th in it for more than a century. The 30 inhabitants in this Exmoor village were all excited when a farmer's daughter announced that she would be married in the church.

The village is so isolated that the wedding party, followed by all the inhabitants, trudged over a moorland tract.

There is no parson here so the vicar of Porlock was borrowed for the ceremony.

The woman verger is sexton, caretaker and organist; she did not have to ring the bill, for the ropes were broken and everybody was there anyway.

WOMAN KILLED, GIRL DYING; MAN CAUGHT BY POLICE

from his hiding-place. In a trice he sent two bullets through the door of the Novello flat.

Mrs. Novello, a mother of one child, heedless of danger, came to the door. Police believe she recognized the gunman and sensed his intentions toward the girl. As he tried to force his way in, gun in hand, she threw herself between him and the girl.

Even as she did so, his gun barked twice. Mrs. Novello crumpled to the floor with two bullets in her head. Inside the flat was the terrified Palmina, seeking vainly for a means of escape. A moment later she dropped unconscious with a bullet through her abdomen.

The gunman then calmly stepped over the body of Mrs. Novello near the door, and started down the stairs. At this juncture DePazzo came running up. Without warning the slayer fired pointblank, and DePazzo, a bullet in his stomach, toppled back, landing at the foot of the stairs.

The man described as Grasco then fled to the roof, sped to an adjoining house and made his way to the street in safety.

An alarm was broadcast to all stations within a few minutes. Special guards were rushed to the North and South stations and to the waterfront.

Another detail, later in the night, was sent to watch a house on Sheafe street. Another house on the same street, occupied by a distant relative of Grasco, was also put under surveillance.

At the hospital doctors probed for the bullet in Miss Consuss's body but were unable to reach it.

KANE EMPLOYES HAVE BANQUET

Over 100 employes of the Kane Furniture Co. and their friends were guests of Harry Kane, president, at the 21st annual banquet in the Westminster Hotel main dining room. Following the banquet there was an entertainment and dancing.

Among those at the head table were President Kane, Mrs. Harry Kane, Miss Ethel M. Coe, firm secretary; S. Roberts, general manager; Jack Gold, assistant manager; Michael Swanson, merchandise manager; John Kerwin, credit manager, and Jack Germain, assistant credit manager.

Harry Kane

During the dinner entertainment was provided by talent from the employes, under the direction of Mr. Germain, assisted by Bob Monteith, John Kerwin, Miss Ethel Yorke and Michael Swanson.

In his remarks Mr. Kane reviewed the remarkable accomplishments of the company in the past 21 years, its steady expansion to the present eight stores and the featuring of Made-in-New-England merchandise in the Kane stores in co-operation with the manufacturers of New England in promoting the prosperity of the people of New England.

TRUCK DRIVER HURT IN TROLLEY COLLISION

A truck driver was seriously injured and passengers on an inbound trolley car on Commonwealth avenue were shaken up today when car and truck collided at Commonwealth avenue and Amory street, Allston. Cecil E. Cook, twenty-four, of Traymore street, Cambridge, the driver, was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital where doctors said he had concussion of the brain and possibly a fractured skull. The truck was turning into Amory street when the accident occurred.

Another Piece of Pie Is All to the Berries

Chicago, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—The following item is dedicated by the University of Chicago physiology department to those digestion pessimists who frown at the mention of fried potatoes and become apoplectic at the word "pie."

Experiments revealed that pie, if well cooked, is "readily digestible."

Fried potatoes and pastry digest as rapidly as boiled food, the university noted in making public results of experiments conducted by A. C. Ivy of the department of physiology and Bessie Boggess of the home economics department.

Using French fried, pan fried and boiled potatoes, the two workers tested each with pancreatic juice, finding that the starch in potatoes was most easily digested in the pan fried potatoes, and that the French fried responded more easily to digestion than the boiled potatoes.

In a second experiment, the actual movement of the food through the stomach was recorded with a fluoroscope X-ray. It showed no material difference in the gastric emptying time of boiled and fried potatoes. When the potatoes were steeped in an excess of fat, however, or were used with butter or rich gravy, gastric disturbance resulted.

DRESSED FOR WINTER, SWIMS 200 YARDS

Although clad in rubber boots and a heavy sweater—among other things, of course—a man clamming along Pines Revere, Revere, from a boat stolen nearly two months ago from the Metropolitan Park police, swam 200 yards up river today.

He escaped Game Warden Ernest Cloon, who had hailed him and directed him to run over to the warden. But the boat was recovered and it still had the police designation and number painted on it.

MUMPS CLOSE SCHOOL IN WATERBURY, CT.

Waterbury, Ct., Nov. 11.—Hopeville City Grammar School was ordered closed by Health Officer Edward J. Godfrey, due to an unusually large number of cases of mumps. Health officials are busy making a survey of other schools. Twenty-nine cases were reported in one room in the Hopeville school.

Haldeman Tells Story of Flight

By GEORGE HALDEMAN

Co-pilot with Ruth Elder in the attempted flight from New York to Paris

Copyright, 1927, by the Boston Evening American and the New York Daily Mirror.

S. S. AQUITANIA (Via Radio) Nov. 11.—The night before leaving New York I read again Commander Richard Byrd's description of conditions, as he found them, over the Atlantic, and I feel now that I would not be performing my duty to the future transatlantic pilots and navigators unless I described conditions as Miss Elder and I found them on our flight.

After studying charts of winds, general weather conditions, and storms over the Atlantic for the past six months I am of the opinion that future airplane passenger service from America to Europe should be flown on a more southerly course than th steamship route.

Of cou se in planning our non-stop flight from Ne York to Paris would have preferred to have followed the northern circuit which is the shor st distance between New Y and Paris, but that was entirely impractical in October, on account of t e extreme cold weather which w would have encountered.

Many of our friends and experienced pilots prevailed upon us to wai until Spring to start our trip, and do now admit that October is possibly the worst month of the year for such a flight.

The American Girl was a new plane with a new super-inspected Wright motor, and we had tested both plane and motor thoroughly. We chose to fly the regular steamship la e which took us over 2,790 miles of water. The day before we left we radioed several steamships which were spaced along our route, and received from them advice on the winds, visibility, and general conditions

EXPECTED HEAD WINDS

I often said that if we could have clear weather for the first few hours of flight and clear weather for landing at Paris we would not mind and would be capable of going through some adverse conditions in the middle. We knew from the messages we received from the steamships and by the charts supplied by the United States Weather Bureau, just about what conditions we could expect, and we found them to be very accurate.

We knew that we should have clear weather for the first twelve hours, or one-third of the way over, with possibly slight head-winds. Then we should have favoring winds, changing to side winds and possibly poor visibility across the middle Atlantic.

For the last 1,000 miles we knew we were to pass through a low pressure area, and just what to expect we did not know. Rain and fog, and fresh to strong East and Southeast winds had been reported.

The weather conditions were ideal for our take-off. Everything seemed in our favor except the wind, which was fresh out of the Southeast, blowing across the runway at Roosevelt Field. We had the plane on the incline at the east end of the runway at 1 o'clock of the eleventh, loaded with 530 gallons of gas and all set to go. The wind was then due out of the South, fresh and strong.

We had to wait. The wind should have shifted to the west later in the evening, but it failed to do that. Three o'clock, and very little change. We received advices of the wind velocity regularly from the army field. Different friends believed the wind would not change until the sun went down, and advised us we were foolish to wait. I knew the wind had either to change or die down for us ever to leave the ground with our heavy load.

A PERFECT TAKE-OFF

At 3:30 o'clock a friend loaned me a plane and I went up to 1,000 feet. I found the wind was shifting considerably to the east, and decreasing in velocity. That was encouraging, but would cause us to take-off from the west and lose the advantage of the incline. At 4 o'clock my flying side-partner, Ed Cornell, Miss Elder and I drove over the runway which was very hard and smooth as it had been rolled all day.

We knew that we must leave even if we had to wait until midnight, but rather than wait that long we decided to take the plane off the incline and move it to the other end of the runway from which we made o take-off.

We had earlier decided to take out about forty gallons of gasoline if we had to make the take-off from the west end, but after taxi-ing the plane down to the west end, and being all set to go we decided to leave everything intact. We had utmost confi nce in the plane and believed that it would lift the load, and without further ceremony at five minutes after five we gave her the gun, and took off.

OVER TREE-TOPS

I am sure we used all the runway, and I never shall forget the last few hundred feet as we held the plane or the ground until the last minute to make sure it had sufficient speed to lift the load. When at the end of the runway we pulled back the wheel it was the greatest feeling in the world to have the plane take the air as smoo hly as it did.

After leaving the ground it seemed almost impossible for the first few minutes to get higher than the tree tops, but being fortunate in having good air the plane gradually increased in altitude until after a few minutes we had gained fully 300 feet.

We were bothered somewhat by a friendly plane bearing cameramen diving in front of us and throwing us into his propeller wash. I do not believe that he realized the trouble he was causing—that few feet of altitude at that time meant considerable to us.

It would only caution pilots accompanying the take-offs of future long distance flights not to fly in front of the long-distance plane, as any disturbances of the air through which a heavily loaded plane is to pass will cause it to lose a few feet of altitude for which it is struggling so hard.

Thirty minutes after the take-off we were well started, everything running smoothly and all the compasses reading true for our due East course for the first 1,200 miles. The accompanying planes waved us a good-bye and we realized that the Atlantic ahead of us was up to us, the good little Wright motor, and our Stinson monoplane for the next thirty-five to forty hours.

'KING BEN' IS NEAR DEATH

Benton Harbor, Mich., Nov. 11 (I.N.S.).—Crushed by the decision of Circuit Judge Louis H. Fead branding him a fraud and a despoiler of young girls under the guise of religion and exiling him from the House of David, "King" Benjamin Purnell is near death today, according to Dr. C. N. Sowers, personal physician of the cult chieftain.

The interview with the colony physician was cut short by frantic calls from Purnell's attendants and the doctor hastened to the bedside of the stricken leader of the colony, who has wasted away from a 200-pound Beau-Brummel to a 130-pound "skin and bone invalid."

At the best Purnell, who is reported suffering from a complication of diseases, cannot live more than three months, Dr. Sowers said.

SEEK FIREBUG IN HINGHAM

Fire Marshal Seth Murtaugh and other State officials are investigating a series of mysterious attempts at arson committed in Hingham during the past year.

The latest manifestation of the firebug took the form of a false alarm sent in from Hersey street in the vicinity of a recent incendiary blaze. The alarm, sounded at 2 o'clock this morning, was rung without opening the box. A jumper wire had been connected above the box.

In practically all the attempts lighted candles gasoline and kerosene had been used. In each instance the fire was started in an unoccupied house and one where no water was available.

Shooting Trip Delayed

Mike Gregoria and Pasquale Bruno were going shooting in Revere today, but the things that abound in the marshes are safe. Two scalawags stole Mike's car while he was putting on his hip boots in Pasquale's Revere home. The guns and shells and all else were in the machine.

Kreisler Soothes the "Savage Breast" With Music

Berlin, Nov. 11 (A.P.).—When the audience hisses, Fritz Kreisler soothes them with music.

Observing his silver wedding anniversary, the violinist said that a recent incident at Liege, Belgium, had taught him how precarious footlight oratory was. He halted his program to acknowledge the applause.

In a brief speech he said that he accepted it less for himself than as a tribute to the German race and German art. Hissing and other protests followed. To save the situation, Kreisler tucked his violin under his chin, drew his bow across the strings and the audience was again good natured.

RESCUES AGED WIDOW IN FIRE

Screams of Mrs. James M. Buttrick, an aged widow, as fire swept through her apartment on the top floor of the four-story concrete structure at No. 72 Gardner street, Allston, today, caused her rescue by the caretaker, Norman Symons, who assisted the panic-stricken woman to safety.

Aerial ladders were used by firemen in fighting the flames, which raged for an hour, in spite of the fact that fireproof walls kept the fire confined to Mrs. Buttrick's suite.

An overheated electric iron is believed to have started the fire. Damage was estimated at $2,000. Apartments on the floors below were damaged by water.

ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVED IN CITY, STATE

for Frank O. Robinson, commanding the Military Order of the World War, and Max Singer, Junior vice-commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

ADMIRAL SPEAKS.

Brief addresses were also made by Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, commandant of the First Naval District; Brigadier-General William P. Jackson, representing Major-General Preston Brown, commanding the First Corps Area; Major Hatch representing Governor Fuller, and Commander John Reth of the Massachusetts Department, American Legion.

Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols presented a cup to the 301st Company, Marine Corps Reserves, Captain Flynn, for efficiency, and Commander Richard E. Byrd was introduced to the crowd which had gathered around the Parkman Bandstand.

The speaking followed the blowing of "Taps," which was followed by a crashing national salute from a battery of field guns, two minutes of silence, and then reveille and the pealing of church bells, with patriotic airs of those which have chimes.

DR. JOHNSON SPEAKS

Dr. Johnson, who ois a major in the infantry reserve, opened his remarks by enumerating some of the "existing forces in our national life which tends to destroy the government for which so many of our brave men died in the great war, and for which so many others suffered loss of health, property or limb."

"I mention first of all," he said, "the many radical organizations which, under smooth-sounding names, such as the Fellowship of Youth for Peace, seek to spread propaganda subversive of the Government of the United States or oppose our national policies or carry on insincere pacifistic agitations for the purpose of destroying our national plan of defense. One of the worst Red ever to come to this country was feted and honored here in Boston by the Fellowship of Youth for Peace."

NEED REAL DEFENSE.

Mentioning pacifists of the extreme type, "who teach that all war is organized murder, never to be justified under any circumstances," he said: "We need a real defense because of numerous religious morons in this city."

He said he noticed that the pacifists direct their propaganda wholly against preparedness in the United States, with not a word to say against the very large and thoroughly trained Red Army in Soviet Russia.

This Gold Star Mother Rejoices in Prayer

ACROSS the unforgetting years on spectral feet, the hosts of the dead came marching home today. No drums. No flare of trumpets. And the guns were stilled.

Shoulder to shoulder, unbroken ranks, the ethereal army of America's martyred sons passed against the background of Time, 30,000 strong. And for each, as the present died before the advancing poignant memories of the past, a mother waited, tight-lipped and trembling.

So, when the hosts had broken ranks, down the long, dusty road that leads from Taunton to a farmhouse on a Raynham hillside, Harry Akins must have walked again. For him, perhaps, it was no longer November, but Spring with the flowers in her spangled dress across the lush meadows and the birds he loved sweet-voiced among the trees.

"PEACE BEFORE TRUCE."

And he came, no doubt, to the path that leads in from the road to the farm that was home, and saw again the chickens running about the yard and clucked to the horse still pastured inside the tumbling wall. And if he did those things, so must he have knelt at last, his head that had been dear in the lap of glory held close in the embrace of his mother's arms.

Certain it is that his mother waited there—gray-haired Mary Akins carrying on, trying to forget, trying to forgetfrying to forget April 20, nine years ago, when her son, stirring and startled, but unafraid, pitched forward and lay still as the surge that carried the 102d Infantry to victory at Toul swept over him.

For Harry Akins, then, "all time had ceased, all laughter ended." For Harry Akins the peace had come before ever the armistice was signed.

And for Harry Akins' mother, who was "glad, glad, glad to give him," there was never more to be peace or happiness.

HER PRAYER IS CONSTANT.

"Pray? Pray for two minutes? There has never been a minute or any hour of any day since Harry was killed that my heart has not gone out in prayer.

"Yes, if you want it, I have an Armistice Day message for the Gold Star mothers," said Mary Akins today. "It is this: Hold fast to a bit of the courage that was your sons'. That courage, with the help of God, will carry you through."

Mrs. Akins sent her three children to school today.

"I did not want to do that," she said. "More than any other day of the year I needed them with me. And there seemed to be sacrilege attached to the pursuit of every-day affairs.

"Armistice Day should be a holiday, a day of prayer and perhaps a day of Thanksgiving.

"Have I ever regretted the sacrifice? No. And please God I never shall. My son was glad to give his life. I am glad, glad, glad to give him to his country."

The national salute of twenty-one guns was preceded by the blowing of "Taps," and the two minutes of silence was followed by "Reveille" and the joyous pealing of many church bells throughout the city.

A large crowd had gathered on the Common when the parade, under the auspices of the Military Order of the World War, formed behind the Shaw Memorial and marched to the Parkman bandstand.

Heading the procession was the Military Order of the World War staff, followed by the executive Committee, and the guests, headed by Lieutenant Governor Frank G. Allen, Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, Major-General Preston Brown, commanding the First Corps Area, Rear Admiral Philip R. Andrews, commandant of the First Naval District, Commander Richard E. Byrd, the Weymouth American Legion Band, and others. Veterans' organizations and detachments from the Army, Navy and Marine Corps completed the parade.

The march to the bandstand was begun at 10:40, and the parade reached its location via the Lafayette Mall a few minutes later.

"TAPS" SOUNDED.

At 10:58 the clear, silvery tones of a bugle wafted the notes of "Taps," the "Good-night" of the service, over the crowd, who stood reverently at attention. Two minutes later the guns of Battery C, 3d Battalion, 101st Field Artillery, Lieut. James A. Caffrey, commanding, shattered the echoes with the 21-gun national salute.

As the last report faded into the distance the entire assembly, the men with heads bared, stood in silence as a tribute to the dead of the World War. Hurrying crowds on Tremont street caught the spirit and came to a halt, while all department stores ceased their activities for the same time.

At 11:02 the bugle blew "Reveille," the church bells pealed out their notes, and those with chimes played patriotic airs.

Paris Pays Tribute With Masses of Flowers

Paris, Nov. 11 (A.P.)—The Armistice celebrations began on the eve of the historic day with the observance of a minute of silence in the Bourse and other public places. The financial markets were closed today.

Throughout the length and breadth of the land, delegations paid tribute to the war dead, burrying the soldiers' monuments under masses of the bright flowers of Fall.

COOLIDGES PAY TRIBUTE TO 'UNKNOWN'

Washington, Nov. 11 (A.P.)—President Coolidge laid a wreath upon the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington Cemetery today and then paused for a moment along with several hundred who had gathered there in silent tribute.

When the President stepped back Mrs. Coolidge placed a single white rose upon the marble slab and the Army Band in new uniforms played "The Star Spangled Banner," the low rumbling of the drums penetrating into the hills which rim the Potomac.

The ceremony was simple and lasted but a few moments. Mr. Coolidge was accompanied to Arlington by Secretary Davis of the War Department, Major-General Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff; Secretary Wilbur and Admiral Eberle, chief of naval operations.

Armistice Day "Silence" Is Kept by Millions

London, Nov. 11 (A.P.)—Great Britain kept the great silence today in commemoration of the signing of the armistice, nine years ago.

With King George and the royal family leading in the homage paid the war dead at the Cenotaph in Whitehall, millions of men, women and children throughout the British empire stood with heads bared and bowed for two minutes in silent thanksgiving for the end of the war, in sorrowful tribute to those slain in battle.
